GOLDEN SUNSHINE SPELLS DOLLARS

TO THE BUCKEYE FARMER MEANS A MILLION A DAY

Heat Mingles Blessings With Its Sufferings By Pushing Corn Past the Danger of Frost—Seven Lives Are Claimed By the Heat Wave In Chicago—Six Hundred Schools Closed—Freak Weather Hits Western Canada—No Relief For Two Days.

A heavy blanket of torrid air continued to envelop the middle west Wednesday, driving the mercury to record heights and resulting in suffering, prostrations and deaths.

Chicago, with a temperature of 95 degrees, led the list with seven heat fatalities. St. Louis reported four. The death toll throughout the country was estimated at more than a dozen. Kankakee, Illinois, reported 99 degrees, the hottest day of the year there.

Western Canada experienced a wave of freak weather. Southern Manitoba sweltering with heat, while snow fell lightly in northern Alberta. Saskatchewan had a taste of both extremes. The western prairies were drenched with rain. At Edmonton the mercury sank to 34, while at Winnipeg it was 89 and at Emerson, Manitoba, 92.

Temperatures continued in the nineties in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and parts of Texas, one prostration being reported at Kansas City in addition to two deaths there.

At least one more day of the belated heat wave which settled over the country in midsummer fashion Wednesday was promised. "Fair and warm Thursday, probably becoming unsettled Thursday night," was the prediction of Henry J. Cox, official forecaster of the Chicago area.

The greater part of the country to the Atlantic is in the path of the torrid wave, the only exceptions being certain large regions and New York and New Jersey.

Iowa reported the most rapid progress ever made by corn during September in that state as a result of the ninety-degree heat. Department of agriculture officials said it had advanced maturity of the crop and increased the percentage that will be safe from frost.

"The volume or total yield of the corn has not been increased," Leslie Carl, chief of the Iowa bureau of crop estimates, said. "The heat, however, is making the crop safe from the danger of a killing frost. Perhaps half the corn in central Iowa is safe now."

"Estimates on the daily gain to the farmers, during the period of hot weather, cannot be made accurately at this time. The farmers, to be exact, probably have not gained any money from their corn during the heat wave since the potential increase in value was in the crop anyway and was waiting for such a betterment of conditions."

In Ohio this year's corn probably will be about 30 per cent below that of 1926, when 145,400,000 bushels were harvested in the state. One reason for that is the decrease of 6 per cent in acreage planted, only 3,376,000 acres having been planted with corn this year.

Estimates of September 1, were that Ohio's corn crop this year will be in the neighborhood of 98,400,000 bushels. This is considerable of a reduction, compared to the 1925 crop, which altho not a bumper one totaled 178,000,000 bushels. The state's average for the past five years is 144,600,000 bushels.

Illinois agricultural officials announced the heat would mean money to the farmers. In Wisconsin, virtually all the corn has been harvested in northern parts, and only the southern and eastern sections would be benefitted.

While not hazarding a guess as to the monetary value of the wave to Wisconsin corn raisers, Commissioner Walter A. Duffy said the heat might make the small portion of the crop not used for silage "approach a full crop."

Illinois total corn crop was predicted September 1, as 53 per cent of normal, based on August conditions. This estimate will be increased greatly if the heat wave continues, A. J. Surratt, agricultural statistician, said.

FIRE ALARM 53.

An alarm was sent in to the fire department from box 53, corner Washington and Ohio streets at 1:30 o'clock Thursday. Smoke issuing from the home of Percy Turney, led neighbors to think the house was on fire. The smoke came from a stove filled with paper. A lighted cigaret had set the paper on fire. There was no loss.

BANDITS HALT BIG BUS AND STEAL GEMS

Three Men Block Auto and Take Jewelry Bags of Salesmen and Escape.

A modern Jessie James hold-up was reported to police at Cleveland by officials of a Cleveland-Akron-Canton bus line who said two salesmen of a Cleveland jewelry firm were robbed of $50,000 in jewelry by three robbers who held passengers and the driver at bay with revolvers while they made their escape.

The robbers halted the bus on a lonely stretch of road in Summit county a short distance from the city, commanded the passengers and driver to throw up their hands, took the cases containing $50,000 in jewelry and escaped in an automobile, bus officials told police.

The bus was speeding toward Cleveland when the highwaymen placed their large yellow sedan across the road, forcing the bus to halt. Cleveland police were guarding all possible approaches to the city in an effort to apprehend the robbers. Fred Myers, driver of the bus, telephoned details of the holdup to his company.

B. & O. R. R. IRON HORSE WITH HISTORY

Will be Shown at the Railroad's Centennial to be Held at Baltimore.

Another iron horse of history—the ancient "Rocket" of the Reading railway system has been shipped to Baltimore for participation in the centenary exhibition and pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, to be held from September 24 to October 8.

Built in March, 1833, by Braithwaite and company, London, England the "Rocket" is a four-wheel engine which was used for passenger and light freight service. The locomotive was named after the famous engine of George Stephenson, which in 1829 was judged the winner in a competitive test on the Stockton and Darlington railroad in England.

After the arrival of the Reading "Rocket" at the port of Philadelphia from England it was conveyed by canal to Reading, Pennsylvania, unloaded and hauled on its own wheels by horses to the railroad tracks. It was placed in regular service in 1838 when the Reading railroad was opened from Reading to Norristown for the conveyance of passengers. It was retired in March, 1879, after having run 310,164 miles. The engine is being brought from its place of exhibition in the Columbia avenue station of the Philadelphia and Reading railway company at Philadelphia.

At one time in its history the "Rocket" had a wooden cab for the engineer. On clear days it was capable of hauling a train at the rate of 25 miles an hour. It has been called a "sunshine engine" because it did not run when it rained as the fuel, wood, became too wet to burn. Later coal was permanently adopted for fuel.

The engineer on the "Rocket" had to function as fireman also. When his steam was running low he would reach over, grab a log from the pile on the platform and thrust it into the boiler. Then he turned back once more to the throttle. There was only one lever and that was the throttle; pushed all the way ahead meant full speed, all the way back, reverse.

The four wheels of the old engine have no driving rods and there are no brakes. The locomotive had to reverse to slow up. There is a crude bumper in the front and, hanging on to the rear, a small open platform with an iron fence around it.

The total length of the "Rocket" is 15 feet 5½ inches, the width seven feet and the weight 11 gross tons, a veritable pigmy besides the 300 ton giants of the present day. Its cylinders are nine inches by 16 inches and its wheels 34 inches in diameter.

Alfalfa Stands Die Out Early
Bacterial Wilt Disease Is Cause of Trouble in Most Districts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Many alfalfa growers have complained to the United States Department of Agriculture during the past three years that their stands of alfalfa now die out in three, four or five years where they once lived much longer. These complaints have come from many places, especially from the central and southern Mississippi valley, and also from some irrigated districts.

Bacterial Disease.
It is not always possible to name the specific cause of alfalfa dying out; in fact, there is often more than one cause operating. But as a result of the attention which these complaints have focused upon the alfalfa crop one fact has become clearly apparent. There is in the United States a bacterial wilt disease of alfalfa which was not previously recognized. This disease, according to Fred K. Jones, pathologist of the department, is responsible for a great deal of the trouble that growers have experienced. Moreover, it appears that bacterial wilt, which now occurs in at least a few fields in practically every alfalfa growing district of the United States may easily become more thoroughly disseminated than at present and that in some districts develop into the most serious disease with which alfalfa culture must contend.

Organism Causing Disease.
The organism causing the disease enters the plant through wounds and passes downward through the taproot and upward through the stems. A length the entire plant may wilt suddenly on a hot day. Later in the summer some of the affected roots produce short, pale-colored, spindle-shaped shoots with small, narrow leaves. When the taproot of such a plant is cut across, the woody portion of the root is found yellow and discolored close beneath the bark. When the bark is stripped back the wood is found yellow or brown, altogether unlike the white wood of healthy plants. This discolored wood distinguishes the disease from winter injury and other troubles.

The bacterial wilt disease is now being studied by the department and state experiment stations to determine its distribution, how it is carried from field to field, when and through what kinds of wounds it most frequently enters the plants, and whether there is varietal resistance to the disease.

Spoilage of Vegetables and Fruits Preventable

Spoilage of canned vegetables and fruits may result because they were not washed clean before they were canned. The soil contains bacteria which causes spoilage. Therefore, get rid of the soil. Wash vegetables, as beans and asparagus, thoroughly before cutting, and peas before podding. Berries should be washed before and after they are hulled. If they are washed in a strainer, the water may be run over them until it is clear as it comes through the strainer. A vegetable brush comes in handy for cleaning some vegetables.

A good slogan to follow in canning all vegetables is "Two hours from garden to can." They should not lay overnight or for a half day or more, but rather should be handled while crisp and fresh. It is far better to pick beans, peas, sweet corn and other vegetables in the early morning and can them right away than to pick them the evening before while they are in a dry, wilted, and hot condition. Flat sour will start by morning in these vegetables that are allowed to lie over night before canned.—Nebraska College of Agriculture.

Agricultural Notes

The laying hen never loafs.
Silos should be tight enough to keep the juice in and the air out.
As a cash crop, soy beans can be successfully grown, especially on the lighter and sandier soils.
The very first step in successful storage of onions is careful curing, and this careful curing must start in the field.
Rye is an excellent nurse crop for clover seed owing to the fact that it can be cut earlier for grain than either wheat or oats.
One cannot afford to spend ten dollars' worth of time repairing a machine that is not worth ten dollars after the job is done.
Successful onion storage demands a cool temperature and low humidity, so it is especially important that they be stored in a well-ventilated place and a place that is as nearly dry as possible.
Plant food in commercial dried animal manures increased about 40 per cent in cost between 1914 and 1921, reports the New York experiment station. Its average cost today is 42.4 cents a pound, as compared with 10.7 cents a pound in mixed mineral fertilizers.

UNIFORM AUTO CODES

The need for a national uniform vehicle code to promote safety as well as to simplify traffic control was emphasized at the Atlantic Coast Safety Conference, held in Philadelphia, by Benjamin Eynon, Registrar of Motor Vehicles in Pennsylvania. A successful system of traffic control, he said, must combine simplicity in regulations, uniformity, preventive departments, with no parking in congested areas, protection of pedestrians and the use of certain streets for certain types of motor vehicles. Some of these suggestions are incorporated in the traffic code adopted by the general assembly at the last session, which will go into effect on January 1, next. As the law is based on the Hoover code, which was prepared to aid in the standardizing of traffic rules throughout the nation, its results will be watched by other states which may be considering similar measures.—Philadelphia Ledger.

How to Hunt Mr. 'Possum and B'r'er Raccoon Made Easy for All

DEVOTEES of the historic night time pastime of hunting opossums and raccoons have discovered a new method for ferreting out the hiding places of these furry denizens of the woods.

Both Mr. 'Possum and his cousin B'r'er Raccoon are, as is well known, past masters of the art of concealing themselves on a leafy bough. At the slightest crackle of bush or twig or the distant bay of the hunting dog they take to the trees and proceed to render themselves invisible to the average eye under cover of night.

Your modern 'possum or raccoon hunter, however, simply unhooks his handy flashlight, which he has been carrying by its ring-hanger from his belt, and shoots its beams up among the boughs of the tree at whose foot bark faithful Tray and his canine companions of the all-night hunt.

Sure enough, among the branches the flashlight beam picks out their quarry's shrinking form and the rest is simple. There remains only the task of shaking the tree sufficiently to toss the bough-clinger from his lofty perch to the ground, or for some hardy member of the expedition to scale the trunk and detach the 'possum or raccoon from his hiding place by a firm grip on his tail.

Thus does science come to the rescue of those tormented beginners in this delectable sport, who, lacking the instinctive sense of the seasoned pursuer, otherwise would spend weary hours tramping from tree to tree, uncertain whether their scatter-brained dogs had actually treed the object of their chase in this or that pine, birch or oak, or were simply "barking up the wrong tree" for perversity's sake.

Lesson for September 18

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 12:1-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Folly of Pride.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Prevent Divisions.

The movements leading up to the disruption of the kingdom had begun in Solomon's reign. He saw in Jeroboam the leader of insurrection and endeavored to kill him. Jeroboam fled to Egypt until Solomon's death (1 Kings 11:40). Having been informed by the prophet Abijah that he was to have ten tribes over which to rule, as soon as he heard of Solomon's death he returned to be ready to take up his work.

I. The Demand of the People (vv. 1-4).

This was occasioned by the burden of excessive taxation and enforced labor, which was required by Solomon in order to build costly houses and temples for his heathen wives. The people were groaning under its weight. Upon the accession of the new king Rehoboam, the people, through their leader Jeroboam, came with the request that their burdens be made lighter, promising loyalty to him on the condition of lightened burdens.

II. Rehoboam's Foolish Decision (vv. 5-15).

1. Rehoboam consulted with the old men (vv. 5-7). These were men of experience who had been Solomon's advisers. Being acquainted with the condition as imposed by Solomon, and knowing the temper of the people, they advised that the people's request be granted.

2. Rehoboam consulted the young men (vv. 8-11). These young men had grown up with him, possibly were his half-brothers, sons of Solomon's many wives. Being thus brought up in the luxury of the harem, they were ignorant of the legal right of the people. Therefore they advised that the burdens be increased.

3. Rehoboam followed the advice of the young men (vv. 12-15). At the appointed time he announced his purpose to the people. He even answered them roughly, asserting his purpose to increase their burdens and sorrows. He assumed that it was his right to rule and that it was the people's role to obey regardless of conditions.

III. The Revolt of the Ten Tribes (vv. 16-24).

Upon Rehoboam's announcement of his rash purpose all Israel cried out, "What portion have we in David? . . . to your tents, O Israel."

1. Rehoboam's attempt to collect tribute (vv. 18, 19). As he endeavored to collect tribute from the ten tribes, Adoram, his tribute gatherer, was stoned to death. So violent was the opposition on the part of the people that Rehoboam had to flee to Jerusalem to save his life.

2. Jeroboam made king over Israel (v. 20). They seem to have lost no time in selecting a head so as to be strong in their opposition to Rehoboam.

3. Rehoboam's attempt to compel the ten tribes to return to David (vv. 21-24).

To effect this, he assembled his army of 180,000 men. Through the prophecy of Shemlah, which forbade them to go against their brethren, they were persuaded to return.

IV. Jeroboam's Scheme to Unify the Ten Tribes (vv. 25-33).

1. He established calf worship (vv. 25-33).

(1) He built houses and high places (v. 31). This was against the direct command of God. God had directed His people to destroy the high places and to break down the idolatrous centers. So we see that Jeroboam, by the demands of his sinful heart, disobeyed God.

(2) He changed the day of the Feast of the Tabernacle (v. 32). The time of this feast was set by the Lord (Lev. 23:33, 34). Jeroboam argued that the change in the time would be better suited to their northern climate, but God, who made the climate, ordained the time of the feast. It was his business, therefore, to obey God.

(3) Jeroboam himself intrudes into the priest's office. The act of presumption on his part was the climax of his godless acts, all of which grew out of his wicked heart.

Work of Famous American Architect

Noted In Temporary White House

THE work of a famous American architect is being brought again to the public eye, by the temporary removal of President and Mrs. Coolidge to the Patterson House, 15 Dupont Circle, while the White House is undergoing repairs.

The Patterson dwelling, known throughout Washington for its simple beauty, was designed by the late Stanford White. Its exterior is principally of white terra cotta, in the use of which Mr. White excelled.

The designer's fine touch is obvious, on this "temporary White House." Light and shadow are contrasted with telling effect, through the combination of delicate modeling and bold projection in the terra cotta work.

Other famous buildings designed by the same architect, with similarly artistic treatment, included Madison Square Garden, Madison Square Presbyterian Church, the Herald Building, all in New York.

ALLEGED MAN BEING HELD

In Julian Oil Fiasco, San Francisco Paper Reports.

San Francisco, Calif.—The Examiner says that Jack Bennett, alias Jacob Berman, alleged "key man" in the state's investigation of the collapse of the Julian Petroleum Corporation, was surrendered recently to Los Angeles officers and is expected to aid in the recovery of a large amount of money lost by stockholders.

Bennett, under indictment in Los Angeles, is charged with failure to account for $34,000,000 when he was in charge of promotion work for the corporation, which failed after a huge overissue of stock.

The paper says Bennett told of touring Europe since he disappeared several months ago and he recently visited his wife in New York while she was being watched in an effort to locate him.

Smart Men Marry

An analyst says that married men are smarter than single ones. Maybe they have to be to get away with it. The idea is not that smartness was indicated in the marrying but was developed in the school of experience. It takes a smart man to maintain a wife in the manner to which she has accustomed herself.

G. A. R. DOWN TO BUSINESS

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 12 (U.P.)—Business sessions of the 1927 encampment of the G. A. R. started today when 1500 blue coated survivors of the Civil War began to think about their next president and the future of their organization.

Although not definitely before the delegates, a question whether the Blue and Gray shall meet again, this time in harmony, overshadowed other matters in interest. There was a definite division in opinion a United Press canvas showed.

Seek Camphor Secret

Botanists are seeking to learn the secret of why one camphor tree will produce solid camphor, and another, although similar in appearance only, camphor oil, which is far less valuable. The Chinese have kept the secret for centuries, and the Japanese, who discovered it in 1895, are also closely guarding it, for to lose it would be to surrender Japan's camphor monopoly.

Where Thought Begins

WAY, WAY BACK

Mrs. Newrich (patronizing)—Were any of your ancestors mea of note,
Mr. Cynic?

Mr. Cynic—Yes, madam, I should say so. One of them was the most famous admiral of his day, and commanded the allied forces of the world.
Mrs. Newrich (with altered tone of deep respect)—Is it possible? And what was his name?
Mr. Cynic—Noah, madam.

Playing Safe

"Beware of speculation," said the Wall street veteran.
"I've got a sure system," answered the man at the hotel desk. "I'm a theater ticket speculator."—The Washington Star.

Had Her There

She—From the earliest day you men have blamed women for every evil.
He—Oh, I don't know. You'll notice that we invariably impute sin to the old Adam in us, never to the old Eve.

Impressive

"Radiator caps should be more artistic. The cap's a prominent feature."
"Yes, it's the first thing that strikes you."—American Boy Magazine.

AFTER HER HEART

She—Teddy, you're a man after my own heart.
He—Good.
She—But that's not saying you'll get it, though.

Summer Styles

In wisdom, woman wears a dress
Whose weight is scarcely felt.
While man still dons in mute distress
A collar and a belt.

Pneumatic Trouble

"My back feels terrible—rheumatism, I think."
"Didn't I hear you say you'd pumped up four tires?"
"Yes, why?"
"Then it's pneumatism you've got not rheumatism."

Knew What Was Good

Mrs. Reilly—What makes these sardines so high?
Grocer—They're imported, ma'am.
Mrs. Reilly—I'll take the domestic ones—those that had the brains to swim across to this country.

To Please Her

She—Of course, I'm greatly honored by your proposal, but as I don't believe in tying myself to one man, I must refuse you.
He—Well, if I organize a syndicate would you consider our offer?

Fifty Per Cent Better

Friend—Well, old chap, how do you like being married? You were always lamenting when you were a bachelor.
Benedict—Oh, it's much better thanks. Before I was miserable at home and miserable when I went out;
now I'm only miserable at home.

Brevity

A man who talks for hours is heard
Without appreciation.
Another, with a single word,
Electrifies the nation.

Matter of Health

"Out West it is considered healthy to mind your own business."
"I don't find that idea prevalent at the various health resorts."

VEXATIONS AND TRIALS COME IN ABUNDANCE

The following is a copy of a letter of a retail merchant to his wholesaler
in answer to a dun:

I beg leave to inform you that the present shattered condition of my bank account makes it impossible for me to send you a check in response to your request for funds for the "Aged and Decrepit Army Worms."

The state of my present financial condition is due to the effects of federal laws, state laws, county laws, corporation laws, by-laws, brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws, mother-in-laws and outlaws, that have been foisted upon an unsuspecting public. Thru these various laws, I have been held down, held up, and walked on, sat on sand-bagged, flattened and squeezed until I do not know where I am, what I am, who I am, or why I am.

These laws compel me to pay a merchant tax, capital stock tax, excess profit tax, income tax, real estate tax, property tax, state auto tax, city auto tax, gas tax, water tax, light tax, amusement tax, cigar tax,
cigaret tax, street tax, real tax,
school tax, surtax, syntax and carpet taxes.

In addition to paying these taxes
I am requested and required to contribute to every society and organization that the inventive mind of man can organize. To the society of the St. John the Baptist, The Women's Relief, the Navy League, the Children's Home fund, the Policemen's Benefit, the Dorcas society, the Y. M.
C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Boy Scouts, the Jewish Relief, the Belgium Relief; the Near East Relief, the Gold Diggers Home. Also, every hospital and every charitable institution in town, the Red Cross, the Black Cross, the White Cross, the Purple Cross and the Double Cross.

The government has so governed my business that I do not know who owns it. I am suspected, expected, inspected, disrespected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, commanded and compelled until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustive supply of money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race and because I refuse to donate all I have and go out and beg, borrow and steal money to give away, I am cursed, discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about,
lied about, held up, held down and robbed, until I am nearly ruined, so the only reason I am clinging to life to see what is coming next.—Sylvania (Ga.) Telephone.

Conscientious Official

A request from O. W. Allenderfer, school board treasurer of Kansas City, Mo., that his salary be cut $50 a month, was approved by the board
"with thanks." Mr. Allenderfer's letter to the board merely said that the service he was giving was not worth the $200 he was being paid.

Getting Along

"How's things, John?"
"Getting along in years. My memory's failing."
"Heh?"
"Can't seem to remember my troubles as long as Iuster."

WEST LONG BEHIND INDIA IN RESEARCH

The scholars of India in the days of the Roman empire had evolved a science of chemistry and knew of the existence of hydrogen and oxygen, according to discoveries announced by
C. R. Kokatnur, a chemist, of 50 East
Forty-first street. According to Mr.
Kokatnur's computations, the discovery of these elements in India antedated their discovery in the western world by about 2,000 years.

Mr. Kokatnur evolved his theories from a Sixteenth century manuscript, which, in turn, was taken from writings coming down from before the Christian era.

According to Mr. Kokatnur, a word which corresponds to the English word "chemistry" has been traced to these pre-Christian days, together with other nouns denoting various dyes, perfumes and fibers.—New York Times.

QUAKER OATS DEMONSTRATION CAR, AN AUBURN

One of the Quaker Oats demonstration cars was in our city Thursday. This car has built into it a miniature of the famous system "FOODS SHOT FROM GUNS."

Mr. LeRoy Myers, the manager of the Quaker Oats demonstrating fleet was with the car and informed us that it is one of nine AUBURN cars used for this purpose and has traveled over the entire United States and into Mexico. This car has run over 135,000 miles and the Quaker Oats company is so very much satisfied with AUBURN service that they have ordered three more new AUBURN Eights for the same purpose.

HAMMEL MOTORS, of our city, has the sales agency for these exceptional cars.

Report Discovery of Indian Rock Carving

What is described as the largest specimen of petroglyphs, or Indian rock carvings, in Canada was recently reported to the archeological office of the Canadian National museum at Ottawa. This carving is said to be 250 feet long and is near Yale, British Columbia. According to the reports, it is carved on a vertical face of reddish rock sheltered by an overhanging ledge. It is about half a mile south of the eastern end of the Alexander bridge on the Caribou highway, and near the Canadian National railway. A trout fishing trail, from which it can probably be seen, runs up in its direction. Previously, the largest known rock carving was on the west side of a 70-foot canyon, about one mile south of Mackenzie highway, in the "Norway of Canada," near Bella Coola, B. C. If the 250-foot carving is verified, efforts will probably be made to have the region set aside as a national monument.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices

Divorce Suit Filed.

Effie M. Atwood has filed in the court of common pleas a suit for divorce from Oscar Atwood. The couple were married in Chillicothe March 3, 1897. They are the parents of twelve living children. The plaintiff charges the defendant with extreme cruelty and gross neglect. She asks the court to restrain the defendant from disposing of his farm consisting of fifteen acres of land located in Pickaway township and also asks for alimony and support of her minor children, the youngest of whom is four years of age. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

Delinquency Charge.

Forrest Hunt was placed under arrest in Columbus Wednesday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Anna Belle McDonald, of Duvall. The warrant was filed by girl's father, Cecil McDonald.

Suit For Money.

C. K. Hunsicker has filed a civil action for money in common pleas court against B. O. Keller and Lucy Keller amount claimed $100.48 with interest at 8 per cent from September 14, 1927.

Alleged Forger.

Chief of Police Warner, accompanied by W. J. Ryan went to Chillicothe Wednesday and brought Ray Van Scoy back with them. He is charged with forging a check on Mr. Ryan for $15. He had a hearing before Mayor Fitzpatrick and in default of a bond of $500, was placed in the county jail.

OHIO HISTORY CELEBRATION AT LOGAN ELM

Preparations are Being Made For a Great Crowd on the First Sunday in October.

Let's see. Where have I heard that word, Logan?

Oh, now I know. It's the name of a sulky chap who got mad because some other chaps killed all his folks and so he wouldn't go to the pow-wow." Finally he changed his mind (like a woman), and spoke his piece (like a man.)

All this took place under a tree. "What tree, mother?" "An elm tree, son, a big old elm tree and we call it LOGAN ELM." "Where is LOGAN ELM, mother?" "On Pickaway Plains, son, six miles southeast of Circleville, that place about half way between Columbus and Chillicothe where a long time ago they squared the circle."

"O, yes, and what about Logan Elm, mother?"

"Well, there's to be a big meeting there on October 2, and an Indian is to sing and tell about his people and lots of things are going to happen. "Let's go, mother." "We surely will, sonny-boy."

RACE OF SLAVES IN CHINA FREED AFTER 550 YEARS

"Lazy Men" Tribe, Descendants of Mongol Conquerors, Are Given Full Citizenship.

Peking.—After being held in bondage for 550 years, the descendants of the Mongols who conquered China in the Fourteenth century and who have been kept in a state of virtual slavery ever since in Chekiang province, south of Shanghai, have been freed by formal edict of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

From the year 900 to 1127 the Sung dynasty ruled China undisturbed. Then, at the time of the Crusades in Europe, when Russia also was being overrun by Mongol tribes, the Mongols descended from the north and west upon China.

After a long period of civil war and chaos the Mongols founded the Yuan dynasty, with Peking as their capital, in the year 1280. This dynasty lasted less than a century, being superseded in 1368 by the Ming dynasty, which in turn was overthrown by the Manchus in 1644. The later holding the throne until the republic was founded in 1911.

When the Mongol dynasty collapsed in 1368 and the Imperial Yuan family retreated northwestward to Ural, about 30,000 Mongol garrison troops in Chekiang province were cut off. An Imperial edict issued by the first Ming emperor made these Mongols all slaves and, though they have not been subject to personal sale for some hundreds of years, they have been harshly oppressed for five and a half centuries.

For 500 years these marooned Mongols have been officially listed as an "inferior race." They have been debarred from taking part in civil service examinations and have not been permitted to hold public office.

So strong has been the prejudice against them that not a single case of intermarriage with a Chinese has been recorded. In occupations they have been limited to chair bearers, flesh-shaw pullers, firemen, barbers and shoemakers.

Today these Mongols number about 20,000 at Ning-Po, where they are nicknamed "lazy men." 200,000 live at Chin-Chow and Wen-Chow, where they are called "cheap men," and others distributed throughout the province number 130,000 more and are known as "the nine degenerate families."

Under the new mandate all trades and professions are thrown open to these Mongols; their children may be educated with Chinese children (when and if the war lords release any revenue for educational purposes), and the ban against intermarriage is officially abolished.

Holds Breath 14 Minutes; Student Sets New Record

Middletown, Conn.—A Wesleyan senior, Earl L. Gaylor of Cliftondale, Mass., has established a new world's record by holding his breath for fourteen minutes and two seconds. The previous record was for ten minutes and ten seconds and was made at the University of California in 1916.

Professor Edward L. Schneider of the biology department at Wesleyan vouches for the authenticity of the test. He declares that a graphic record of chest and diaphragm motion over the entire period showed that at no time could air have been taken into the lungs.

Oxygen was used by Mr. Gaylor in preparing for the test. He first breathed excessively over a short period in order to rid the blood of carbon dioxide. He then took three deep breaths of oxygen, the last of which he held for the record time.

Fifth Century Christian Pictures in Cliff Cave

Jerusalem, Palestine.—What is believed to be the oldest extant specimen of Christian pictorial art in Palestine has been discovered in the cave of the Fifth century hermit, Theodotus, in the desert about ten miles east of Jerusalem.

The interior of the cave had been fashioned into a church, with a mosaic floor and frescoes representing the Virgin Mary, the crucifixion and a group of saints.

D. J. Chitty of New college, Oxford, found the cave, which is in the side of a cliff, and can be reached only by a rope or ladder.

Discover Anesthetic When Flowers Die

Chicago.—Because Wisconsin carnations went to sleep when brought to Chicago, science was able to discover ethylene, a new anesthetic as powerful as ether and less poisonous, doctors say.

Discovery followed an investigation by William Crocker and L. I. Knight, University of Chicago botanists, according to Dr. Arnold Luckhardt of the university's physiology department.

The botanists were called in to explain why carnations wilted when exposed to "bluminating gas."

Laboratory work then disclosed the gas possessed the principle of ethylene. Doctor Luckhardt conducted tests, even trying the new anesthetic on himself, before he introduced it to the medical profession.

AMUSEMENTS

If you don't enjoy dancing, you don't enjoy life to its utmost!

Relieve it or not, this is the contention of Joan Crawford, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player who was a Broadway dance celebrity before attaining a like position as a picture actress.

One can't talk to Joan for five minutes without realizing that here is a girl who is getting the utmost out of every experience, whose effulgent personality carries her thru every difficulty to a point a little bit higher than she occupied before.

Joan says that dancing taught her to project this personality, to live in a veritable whirl of life and rhythm and by sheer force to conquer her misfortunes—rather than let them conquer her.

"Dancing is far more than a physical exercise," says Miss Crawford. "It is something that takes hold of one's spirits as well, and pitches them to a higher key. I would advise every young person, and especially every girl, to study dancing, even if she knows that she will never put it to any so-called 'practical use.'"

Joan plays the title role in Harry Millarde's production of "The Taxi Dancer," now playing at the Met theater. It is the screen version of Robert Terry Shannon's popular novel of the same name, and the cast includes Owen Moore, Marc MacDermott, Douglas Gilmore, Gertrude Astor, Rockliffe Fellowes, Bert Roach, Claire McDowell, William Orlamond and Charles French.

TERRY, KING OF ALL UNCLE TOM PRODUCERS.

Uncle Tom shows may come and Uncle Tom shows may go, but—Terry's big company goes on forever, and is looked upon as King and Monarch of them all with the slogan, "Forever, Foremost and Newest." Many have tried to imitate the successful Terry for years, springing up like Jonah's gourd, but they have withered in the night like a school of minnows following in the wake of a whale, and it was thus that the lines were adopted, "After the Minnows Comes the Whale," and it has surely proved in its place when used. Terry has been a successful producer of Uncle Tom's Cabin for the past thirty-three years and this season is no exception to the rule. His production this season is more than living up to the past reputation of former years, the large company composed of some fifty people, both white and colored, travel in their own especially constructed cars, and give the performance under a monster waterproof tent, and when the show comes this year, it will be found to be greatly enlarged.

Terry's big production of Harriet Ward Beecher Stowe's famous slave play will appear for one night performance only at Circleville, Thursday, September 15.

Terry's Challenge concert bands will give free concerts upon the principal streets. Doors open at 7:30 p. m. Performance at 8 p. m.

LICENSE TAG NUMBER MAY MAKE SUCCESS

An automobile driver in Athens feels that the number on his automobile license tag will have something to do with success in his affairs of the heart. He is moreover given over to superstition.

In writing to Joseph E. Baird, assistant secretary of state, asking for a tag for 1928, and taking time by the forelock before the requests become too numerous and the tags of the kind he desires are gone, he makes this unique request. "Please select a number for me that has something sentimental about it. This may help me with the young ladies I take out riding. But above all things do not pick one out with 13 in it. I am afraid that would bring bad luck."

"That is the most novel request I have ever had," said Mr. Baird, "although they write in asking for nearly everything."

After giving the matter due consideration and calling in others for consultation, the number 3553 was finally decided upon and sent.

Baird admitted he did not know whether this would meet the requirements for sentimentality but at least it did not have 13 included and would meet that portion of the request.

MADE HIS BID FOR BARGAIN IN WIVES

Abbe Domenech, the French priest who labored in Texas in the early part of the Nineteenth century, left an interesting record of his work in a book, now out of print, that was published in London in 1853.

One amusing incident he recorded concerned a Presbyterian minister at Brownsville, who bestirred himself to dispose of his three marriageable daughters. The minister, noting that no one sought the hands of his daughters, preached a sermon on the subject of marriage, amplifying the text in Genesis, "Increase and Multiply." He spoke with eloquence and warmth on the bliss of the hymeneal state and ended by offering his three daughters, with $3,000 of fortune for each, to whomsoever would espouse them. He added that he would receive the names of the candidates after service. A wag in the congregation did not wait for the time prescribed by the minister, but shouted from his pew: "Put my name on the list for two."

BANK HEAD IS SUICIDE

Greenville, O., Sept. 13.—(UP.)—The Farmers' State Bank of Eldorado, Preble County, closed here this morning following the suicide about 9 p. m. yesterday of Carl D. Miller, president, whose body was found in the garage back of his home by his wife.

Miller shot himself in the head. Mrs. Miller found a note on the table when she returned home from a club last night. The note said she would find her husband in the garage and that affairs of the bank were in good condition. The wife notified the Preble County coroner who said Miller had been dead about two hours.

State examiners examined the books about three weeks ago.

They returned yesterday morning to make a further check.

DISTRESS IS LAID TO MINERS

Operators Declare Suffering in Valley Fields Is "Self-inflicted."

Following refusal of Governor Donahey, yesterday to issue a proclamation calling for financial aid for school children in the districts affected by Ohio mine disputes, Hocking Valley coal mine operators issued a statement putting "suffering and distress" squarely up to the striking miners.

Governor Donahey, while declaring he would be glad to head a contributors' list to alleviate suffering in the Gloucester district or any other, declined to issue a proclamation at the request of a committee of Gloucester merchants.

The operators' statement, given after their meeting here, said, in part:

"The tragedy of the situation lies in the truth that the misery now prevailing among Hocking Valley miners is self-inflicted.

"It is true that families of many idle miners are suffering from lack of sufficient food and clothing. The remedy lies in the hands of the miners themselves.

"The present plight is due to refusal of husbands and fathers to return to work.

"Since July 15, Hocking Valley coal operators have sought vainly to induce the miners to accept what is known as the $5 a day scale of wages—the same scale now in effect at mines operating in adjoining counties of Meigs and Gallia, and in the neighboring states of Kentucky and West Virginia—a scale above the level Ohio is now paying for construction of highways, with many applicants for every job."

Continued Progress in Eradicating T. B. Many Counties Complete Tuberculin Testing.

A summary of tuberculosis-eradication work conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the various states shows excellent results during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927. An outstanding achievement was the large increase in the number of entire counties which have completed the tuberculin testing of all cattle within their boundaries. The summary of progress shows 347 such counties distributed among 27 states. Thus more than half of the states have one or more such tuberculosis-free counties. The three leading states in this respect are North Carolina with 82 counties on the modified-accredited list, Michigan with 42 and Iowa with 30 such counties.

On July 1 a total of 17,600,380 cattle in the United States were under supervision for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis. Besides this number considerably more than four million cattle are on waiting lists and will be tested as soon as the federal, state and county veterinary inspectors complete other work for those owners who signed up earlier for tuberculin testing.

The total number of cattle in herds accredited as free from tuberculosis exceeds 1,885,000. The work of tuberculosis eradication is going forward systematically in all states. During the last month of the fiscal year the inspectors engaged in tuberculin testing applied the test to more than 800,000 cattle, of which approximately 24,000 were found to be affected with the disease. The removal of such reactors from contact with healthy cattle, followed by the slaughter of diseased animals under federal inspection, is gradually reducing the extent of bovine tuberculosis throughout the country and benefiting both the live-stock industry and public health.

Plan for Determining Sex of Guinea Fowls

In raising guinea fowls, many amateurs and some not so amateurs, are puzzled when the time comes for marketing, as they find it difficult to select males and females to be retained for breeding purposes.

To a casual observer the male and female of the species are identical in shape, size and plumage. But a closer inspection will reveal that one has a richer color of the neck feathers, its wattles are more plump and firm, and the plumage in general is more compact. This is the male.

The "buck-wheat" call that is so commonly supposed to come from the male is, in fact, the cry of the female, usually when frightened or excited. She may be further detected by her rougher coat of feathers, and by her wattles which are somewhat pale and shrunken.

When guinea fowls are in the prime of condition, as they should be after spending the summer on free range, the difference between the male and female will not be so pronounced as it is in the early summer, just after mating time, and one should study the birds carefully to insure a balanced selection of stock for breeding purposes.

Harvest Silage Corn When Ears Are Mature

When corn is to be harvested for silage, it should be cut when the ears are mature but the leaves and stalks are still green. Corn cut and bound to be fed as dry forage should be cut at the same time. It should be allowed to cure in shocks until dry and then hauled in and piled. By this method the ears are mature and well filled and all of the forage value of the stalks is saved.

Corn should not be shucked out of the field until it has dried for several weeks, after it has quit growing. Otherwise the corn will be hard to shuck, will be apt to heat and mold and make poor feed. In shucking from the field it is a good practice to have a box in which to throw the better ears. These can be specially dried out and sorted for seed supply if field-selection has not been practiced, or if there is a market for seed corn.

As the corn is shucked out it should be hauled to a crib that is well ventilated, and if possible protected against rats and mice.—Extension Bulletin 237-A, Colorado Agricultural College.

Rye and Wheat Are Good as Spring Soiling Crop

For a spring soiling crop, fall-sown rye and wheat are excellent and are especially adaptable in the North. These can be followed with either barley or oats for an early summer soiling crop in the North. Sudan grass is, also, an excellent soiling crop for this season, and in the South sorghums and Japanese cane in particular are probably the best. Sorghums may be cut at two to three feet, but much better yields are realized if they are allowed to head.

The big need for a soiling crop is in midsummer, however, when pastures are dry. For a short season crop at this time, corn is the leader in the corn belt. It is palatable, yields heavily, and remains in good condition over a long period of time.

Breaks Closed-Car 2,000-mile Record

Then during night skidded in rain storm, turned over several times, received body repairs only

Then Finishes 15,000-miles at 62.709 M.P.H.

For more than 30 hours, averaging better than 65 miles an hour, this strictly stock Auburn Sedan had been whirling around the Atlantic City Speedway day and night.

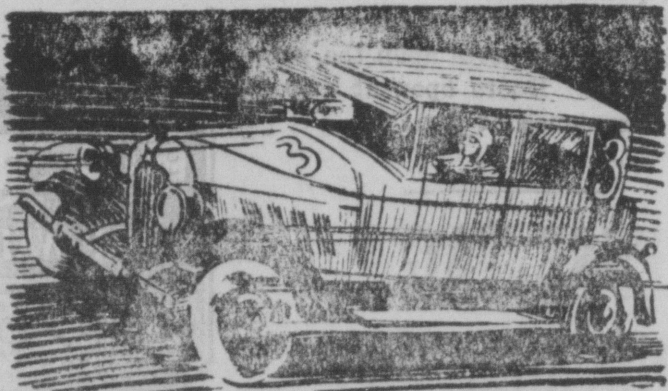

Then came a terrific rain storm. Wet track. At 70 miles per hour the driver skidded, the car crashed.

Radiator and body repairs were made. Seven hours had been lost. But the Sedan went back into the test with the same driver. It caught up with the other two Auburn stock cars and finished the unprecedented distance of 15,000 miles.

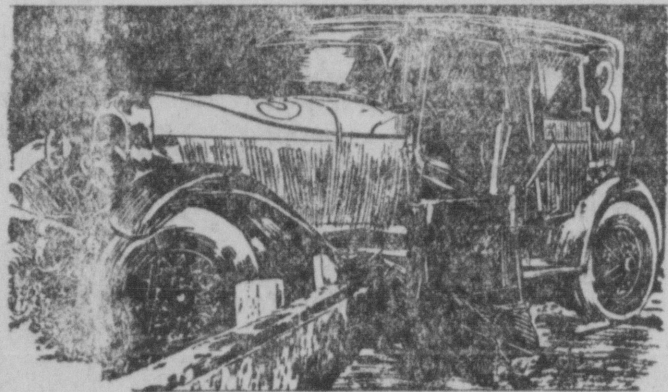

After the accident, the car was declared non-stock, as it was no longer complete—exactly as sold, but its time continued to be officially recorded by the A.A.A. The longest, hardest and fastest official test ever given a closed car.

Unheard of as this performance is, it was only an incident in the 42,000 miles of official stock car test Auburn conducted, breaking all records for completely equipped stock cars from 5 to 5,000 miles, and establishing new stock car records from 5,000 to 15,000 miles.

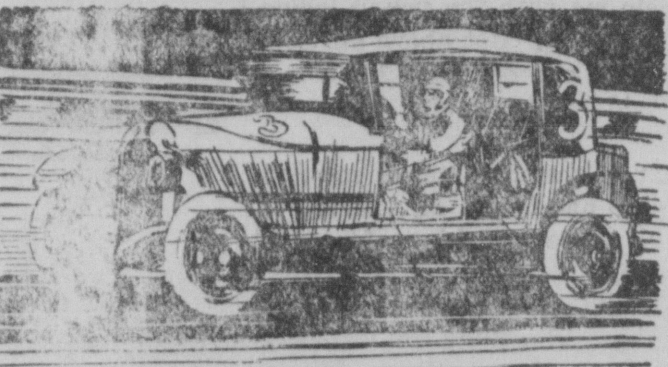

The purpose of this extreme and hitherto unattempted stock car test, was to demonstrate by three times greater proof the supreme leadership of Auburn cars in speed, endurance, durability and efficiency. Your Auburn dealer has exact duplicates of the Auburn cars that made these phenomenal records.

Drawing made from actual photograph
The Auburn Straight Eight Sedan, one of the three fully equipped stock cars in the Atlantic City Speedway endurance test. Here it is shown traveling better than 70 miles an hour after breaking closed-car 2,000 mile record at 65.583 miles per hour.

Drawing made from actual photograph
About the middle of the second night of this continuous run, when the track was wet as a result of a rain storm, the driver skidded. As a result, the car going at high speed skidded. It hit the guard rail and turned over. The sturdy construction of Auburn resisted this smash so well that only body damages resulted. The driver was unhurt.

Drawing made from actual photograph
Here is proof of stamina! After 7 hours for photographs and body repairs, this sedan went back into the endurance test, driven by the same driver, and finished the remainder of the 15,000 miles at an average speed of over 67 miles an hour for the net running time for the entire distance.

Those Appealing Eyes

By AD SCHUSTER

FEELING that it was more than he could afford, Nat Winan slipped a quarter under the edge of his plate.

"If ever a girl needed money," he thought as he looked at the dark-haired waitress who had served him, "she does."

As he arose to leave she thanked him and as he looked into her eyes he had his reward. The eyes said more than her words. They seemed to speak of a gratitude out of proportion to the small tip.

"Thank you," said the girl again and Nat thought she was near to tears.

After that he took to going without dessert that he might leave its cost for the girl. While he ate he watched her. She was as neat, perhaps neater than the others, he decided, and yet in her very neatness there was a story of a struggle to make ends meet.

He could see that she had dyed her waist herself and in her belt and tie there were firmly pressed evidences of needlework that had all but concealed the ravages of time and many washings. She never told him she was poor. Her slim figure, appealing eyes, indeed, her very presence did that.

She was the sort, he told himself, who could hide holes with ink spots, cover spots with a flower or apron, and never know when she was beaten.

"She is a brave little kid," said Nat Winan, feeling suddenly his strength and independence as a man. "and I wish I could do something to help her."

He wondered how large her pay check was, whether she had some one to support and tried to read the story in the face that daily seemed more tragic and wistful.

After a while Nat discovered others were leaving tips for Irene. To some he confided his theory that she was using every cent for the care of an aged mother and was surprised to learn they had long held the same belief. Meals at the Red Front restaurant became more than a formality.

Nat felt that in leaving his daily tip and calling the attention of others to the wordless appeal of the waitress he was taking part in a philanthropic enterprise. He even felt as a father or big brother to the girl and discovered that her face, particularly her eyes, persisted in his thoughts. At such times he would smile and say, that, according to tradition, it should be a rich man and not he who should fall in love with the waitress and rescue her from her poverty and hard work.

One evening as the young man walked the streets in the neighborhood of his home he tried to analyze his feelings for Irene, sought to discover if the pity he felt for the young woman was love. With the problem on his mind he stepped from the curb. There came an agonized squeal of brakes, an angry, frightened shout, an automobile struck him and he went down.

Nat knew his shoulder was hurting, that he had been shoved along in the dirt. He could hear people running up. He was the center of such a crowd as he has seen around other injured men and he wanted to tell them to go away. Then he saw a woman, a beautiful woman in an evening dress. Her face was white and frightened and she leaned over.

"You stepped right in front," she said. "I couldn't help hitting you."

The crowd seemed to disappear. Nat could see nothing but the face of the girl whose automobile had bowled him over. They were lifting him to his feet now. Perhaps he wasn't so badly hurt.

"Take this," said the girl; "it's for a new suit and maybe for a doctor."

Mechanically he closed his hand on the roll of bills. It was all too bewildering. This girl of the fine dress, the automobile and the money, was Irene of the restaurant, Irene who looked appealing and made it pay.

Morley Didn't Care to Hear Gladstone's Voice

John Morley's "Life of Gladstone" is, of course, one of the greatest biographies ever written. Dr. Charles F. Thwing, president emeritus of Western Reserve university, was once discussing it with Morley, and the latter told him that Mr. Gladstone left no fewer than 300,000 distinct pieces of paper, some of large, some of small, content; some of great significance, some of no meaning.

"But I had to examine each one, and it almost killed me," added Morley.

Morley was once staying with Andrew Carnegie, and a phonograph was doing its best to entertain the company by grinding out its songs and speeches.

"Would it not be good if we had had the phonograph in the days of Mr. Gladstone, and could have preserved his voice for our present hearing?" remarked Mr. Carnegie.

John Morley replied with a wearisome sigh:

"I heard Mr. Gladstone's voice all I wanted to."—Kansas City Times.

Praise

If then I were a nightingale, I would do the nightingale's part; if I were a swan, I would do as a swan. But now I am a rational creature, and I ought to praise God; this is my work; I do it, nor will I desert my post, so long as I am allowed to keep it; and I exhort you to join in this same song.—Epictetus. INDUSTRIAL REVIEW OF OHIO

Industry Is The Lifeblood Of The Country. Cities grow and prosper through acquisition of New Industries and Expansion of Manufacturing Plants already established.

Wellsville—Ohio Power Company installing automatic traffic light at Ninth and Main street.

Cleveland—$1,017,000 to be expended for road work in Cuyahoga County's road program.

Chagrin Falls—Chagrin Valley Club votes to build $89,000 clubhouse.

Lima—Freight traffic to be resumed soon on Lima-Defiance road.

Painesville—Work under way on extension of Fairport, Painesville & Easter Railroad from here to Madison.

Ashland—$31,728 worth of contracts let for the construction of 15 bridges and culverts in the county.

Shelby—Asphalt laid on Third Street, Raymond Avenue, to be similarly treated.

Oakwood—Work nearing completion on community building here.

Arcanum—Big gas well brought in near Arcanum.

Lewisburg—Cornerstone laid for $90,000 new Lewisburg school building.

Mansfield—$14,500 to be expended on improvement of North Main street.

Ashtabula—Gas well drilled near here has initial flow of 15,000,000 cubic feet.

Geauga—Lumber shed being constructed at yard of Chardon Lumber Company.

Akron—Contracts let for five street improvement projects here.

Gypsy Language Universal

Romany is the language spoken by the gypsies. It is said that a careful examination shows that Romany is closely allied to that ancient language of the Middle East, the Sanscrit. The language of true gypsies in every land is nearly alike and gypsies from widely separated countries can understand one another.

NO TRICK TO IT

It is characteristic of the knocker to use the wrong method in trying to do anything, so it is quite like him to try to kick open the treasure chest of municipal prosperity when his feeble first attempts to get somewhere have failed. He has much to learn about the right way of doing things for his own good and for the good of the town.

A pessimistic attitude never opened the way to a happier existence and the idea that criticizing everything will lead anywhere is dead wrong. These are the chief possessions of most knockers, so it is not hard to understand why they are usually counted out.

The only right method to use in promoting the town's welfare is to inject the spirit of civic pride into everything. That spirit is the key to the town's prosperity and all the keys that the knocker has been trying to use might better be thrown in the scrap heap. Civic pride is what Circleville and every other city must keep alive and let's see that it is done.

The High Hatter

It's all right to be dignified, but don't go through life on stilts. The unbending chap bangs his head against the tunnels that other folks duck.—Farm and Fireside.

Muscular Talk

Railway Sacks

Indian jute, made 23 inches by 58 inches, and of quality 12 weft by 12 threads porter, produces the railway grain sacks for the farmers and shippers of Britain's grain and Britain's bread. It is said that the average life of a railway sack is seventeen years, and even then it is not useless, for it is usually sold to paper factories, or used by acid manufacturers for rough gloves for their workmen.

The Bolshevism of Brush Creek

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"WONDER why people love to say such horrid things," Marcia speculated.

"Natural, cussedness—politely called original sin," Leesy said through the corner of her mouth.

"For instance, the Wests won't go anywhere," Marcia went on, "not even to church, since it got out that Joe's wedding clothes are still unpaid for—and that skindint Ives threatening suit. He knows they'll pay when they can, but keeps dunning them."

"Personal spite there—Jen could have had that goggle-eyed young Ives for just the taking," Leesy explained. "Goggle-eye propped himself on Joe's piazza three Sundays running, after scraping acquaintance with her—four days when she brought in their truck. Mose West invited him to stay away, ever so politely—told him Joe was his girl, and he didn't want a real dangerous rival. Goggle-eye proposed the very next day over the telephone—so next time Mose clean forgot to be polite—scared the Ives hope out of at least a year's growth."

"So that's the real low-down of it," Marcia laughed. "Something ought to be done about it. But how about a boycott?"

"With trimmings!" Leesy cried joyously. "Now that we all can vote, let's organize against the Oppression of the Unearned Increment in the shape of long credits to old Pat Logan. His megs are all set to run for circuit judge in September. The decent poor and the simply decent can if they will, snow him under out of sight. Just get together, make believe to turn Bolsheviki. I'll bet you we turn out angels of rescue to everybody in debt."

"Which means nearly everybody in the county."

"Save—do you know how long it takes to stop a boycott?" Leesy asked abruptly.

"I can find out."

"I'm thinking of the Graysons," Leesy said. "They—they've had such dreadful luck—losing hogs with cholera, more than a hundred—worth enough to have left them free and clear; then lightning struck their stock barn—not insured through lack of money—which meant new teams on credit—at double price with interest."

"Thus was hatched Brush Creek's outbreak of Bolshevik enthusiasm that drew to that delectable region more than state-wide attention. Marcia and Leesy had laid all cards on the table before uncles, nephews, cousins, sweethearts present and prospective, also their grievances—which had enough of reality to make them tenable.

Their prize investigator was Joe Grayson, who looked so innocent and asked such simple questions nobody feared to tell him anything. That is to say, except Marcia Lytle—who let her eyes only tell him she loved him. Leesy knew without telling, being herself in much the same case regarding young Langley who had mortgaged his future for a loan from a speculative dealer in grain, in hope thus to make a quick fortune.

First storm clouds had risen in June to darken the political skies of sundry excellent gentlemen. Marcia and Leesy and their coadjutors for six weeks worked under cover. Suddenly burst the era of barbecues—plentiful roast meat to lure the sovereigns within earshot of orators who could charm birds from the trees, followed more barbecues—money began talking through them on the other side, then three days before election, every highway was placarded, "Citizens, vote to secure every man in what is justly his own—but not to let him take away through usury what belongs to his neighbor." Then letter boxes overran with printed transcripts of court proceedings where law had prevailed to the undoing of justice—likewise statistics of what the county had lost potentially through the enforced emigration of so much of its best blood. More than one millionaire was in the roster, eke judges, railroad men, engineers, merchant-traders, what not—all under the heading: "They went away to find their chances—chances denied them at home."

No need to wait till votes were counted—admittedly the Bolsheviks had won, hands down. Sancy Leesy pinched an ear of the kidnaped Joe Grayson, saying softly: "I'm happy—happy enough to die. Don't grudge it—if you are a man. First chance I ever had to feel I'd really helped the right side. We'll do it again—me and Marcia—when it comes to voting for the new bridge at New Year. That means fat chances of hauling and so on for you and Billy Langley," flushing in spite of herself as she spoke the name; "and you go ask Marcia what she thinks of a nice double wedding at Christmas. She'd be awfully plagued if she had to ask you herself."

"Don't trifle! I've stood all I can today," Joe said huskily. "You don't—you can't think I've even half a chance?"

"A whole chance with bells and blue ribbon on it, also a wedding ring!" Leesy laughed—then as Joe grabbed her hand and all but crushed it: "Find Bill Langley and tell him about the plan—and if he threatens to run away, paste him one in the eye."

Heat Mingles Blessings With Its Sufferings By Pushing Corn Past the Danger of Frost—Seven Lives Are Claimed By the Heat Wave In Chicago—Six Hundred Schools Closed—Freak Weather Hits Western Canada—No Relief For Two Days.

A heavy blanket of torrid air continued to envelop the middle west Wednesday, driving the mercury to record heights and resulting in suffering, prostrations and deaths.

Chicago, with a temperature of 95 degrees, led the list with seven heat fatalities. St. Louis reported four. The death toll thruout the country was estimated at more than a dozen. Kankakee, Illinois, reported 99 degrees, the hottest day of the year there.

Western Canada experienced a wave of freak weather. Southern Manitoba sweltering with heat, while snow fell lightly in northern Alberta. Saskatchewan had a taste of both extremes. The western prairies were drenched with rain. At Edmonton the mercury sank to 34, while at Winnipeg it was 89 and at Emerson, Manitoba, 92.

Temperatures continued in the nineties in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and parts of Texas, one prostration being reported at Kansas City in addition to two deaths there.

At least one more day of the belated heat wave which settled over the country in midsummer fashion Wednesday was promised. "Fair and warm Thursday, probably becoming unsettled Thursday night," was the prediction of Henry J. Cox, official forecaster of the Chicago area.

The greater part of the country to the Atlantic is in the path of the torrid wave, the only exceptions being certain large regions and New York and New Jersey.

Iowa reported the most rapid progress ever made by corn during September in that state as a result of the ninety-degree heat. Department of agriculture officials said it had advanced maturity of the crop and increased the percentage that will be safe from frost.

"The volume or total yield of the corn has not been increased," Leslie Carl, chief of the Iowa bureau of crop estimates, said. "The heat, however, is making the crop safe from the danger of a killing frost. Perhaps half the corn in central Iowa is safe now."

"Estimates on the daily gain to the farmers, during the period of hot weather, cannot be made accurately at this time. The farmers, to be exact, probably have not gained any money from their corn during the heat wave since the potential increase in value was in the crop anyway and was waiting for such a betterment of conditions."

In Ohio this year's corn probably will be about 30 per cent below that of 1926, when 145,400,000 bushels were harvested in the state. One reason for that is the decrease of 6 per cent in acreage planted, only 3,376,000 acres having been planted with corn this year.

Estimates of September 1, were that Ohio's corn crop this year will be in the neighborhood of 98,400,000 bushels. This is considerable of a reduction, compared to the 1925 crop, which altho not a bumper one totaled 178,000,000 bushels. The state's average for the past five years is 144,600,000 bushels.

Illinois agricultural officials announced the heat would mean money to the farmers. In Wisconsin, virtually all the corn has been harvested in northern parts, and only the southern and eastern sections would be benefitted.

While not hazarding a guess as to the monetary value of the wave to Wisconsin corn raisers, Commissioner Walter A. Duffy said the heat might make the small portion of the crop not used for silage "approach a full crop."

Illinois total corn crop was predicted September 1, as 53 per cent of normal, based on August conditions. This estimate will be increased greatly if the heat wave continues, A. J. Surratt, agricultural statistician, said.

BANDIT'S HALT BIG BUS AND STEAL GEMS

Three Men Block Auto and Take Jewelry Bags of Salesmen and Escape.

A modern Jessie James hold-up was reported to police at Cleveland by officials of a Cleveland-Akron-Canton bus line who said two salesmen of a Cleveland jewelry firm were robbed of $50,000 in jewelry by three robbers who held passengers and the driver at bay with revolvers while they made their escape.

The robbers halted the bus on a lonely stretch of road in Summit county a short distance from the city, commanded the passengers and driver to throw up their hands, took the cases containing $50,000 in jewelry and escaped in an automobile, bus officials told police.

The bus was speeding toward Cleveland when the highwaymen placed their large yellow sedan across the road, forcing the bus to halt. Cleveland police were guarding all possible approaches to the city in an effort to apprehend the robbers. Fred Myers, driver of the bus, telephoned details of the holdup to his company.

LOGAN ELM GRANGE PLANS "PEST HUNT"

Logan Elm Grange is sponsoring a "Pest Hunt." Rats, mice, hawk, sparrow and crow heads and any thing that is destructive to the farmer.

Not only grangers, but the community is asked to help. The township has been divided into north and south divisions, the dividing line being just north of the school building. North captains are Charles P. Mowery and Frank Wharton; south captains, Wilbur Metcalf and Charles Baldoser. The committee on rules; Marvin Dresbach, Will Anderson, Adam Rueb and Charles Waples. All trophies are to be turned in to this committee at time and place decided upon by them. Losing side to furnish supper.

B. & O. R. R. IRON HORSE WITH HISTORY

Will be Shown at the Railroad's Centennial to be Held at Baltimore.

Another iron horse of history—the ancient "Rocket" of the Reading railway system has been shipped to Baltimore for participation in the centenary exhibition and pageant of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, to be held from September 24 to October 8.

Built in March, 1838, by Braithwaite and company, London, England the "Rocket" is a four-wheel engine which was used for passenger and light freight service. The locomotive was named after the famous engine of George Stephenson, which in 1829 was judged the winner in a competitive test on the Stockton and Darlington railroad in England.

After the arrival of the Reading "Rocket" at the port of Philadelphia from England it was conveyed by canal to Reading, Pennsylvania, unloaded and hauled on its own wheels by horses to the railroad tracks. It was placed in regular service in 1838 when the Reading railroad was opened from Reading to Norristown for the conveyance of passengers. It was retired in March, 1879, after having run 310,164 miles. The engine is being brought from its place of exhibition in the Columbia avenue station of the Philadelphia and Reading railway company at Philadelphia.

At one time in its history the "Rocket" had a wooden cab for the engineer. On clear days it was capable of hauling a train at the rate of 25 miles an hour. It has been called a "sunshine engine" because it did not run when it rained as the fuel, wood, became too wet to burn. Later coal was permanently adopted for fuel.

The engineer on the "Rocket" had to function as fireman also. When his steam was running low he would reach over, grab a log from the pile on the platform and thrust it into the boiler. Then he turned back once more to the throttle. There was only one lever and that was the throttle; pushed all the way ahead meant full speed, all the way back, reverse.

The four wheels of the old engine have no driving rods and there are no brakes. The locomotive had to reverse to slow up. There is a crude bumper in the front and, hanging on to the rear, a small open platform with an iron fence around it.

The total length of the "Rocket" is 15 feet 5 1/2 inches, the width seven feet and the weight 11 gross tons, a veritable pigmy besides the 300 ton giants of the present day. Its cylinders are nine inches by 16 inches and its wheels 34 inches in diameter.

Alfalfa Stands Die Out Early
 Bacterial Wilt Disease Is Cause of Trouble in Most Districts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
 Many alfalfa growers have complained to the United States Department of Agriculture during the past three years that their stands of alfalfa now die out in three, four or five years where they once lived much longer. These complaints have come from many places, especially from the central and southern Mississippi valley, and also from some irrigated districts.

Bacterial Disease.
 It is not always possible to name the specific cause of alfalfa dying out; in fact, there is often more than one cause operating. But as a result of the attention which these complaints have focused upon the alfalfa crop one fact has become clearly apparent. There is in the United States a bacterial wilt disease of alfalfa which was not previously recognized. This disease, according to Fred R. Jones, pathologist of the department, is responsible for a great deal of the trouble that growers have experienced. Moreover, it appears that bacterial wilt, which now occurs in at least a few fields in practically every alfalfa growing district of the United States, may easily become more thoroughly disseminated than at present and that in some districts develop into the most serious disease with which alfalfa culture must contend.

Organism Causing Disease.
 The organism causing the disease enters the plant through wounds and passes downward through the taproot and upward through the stems. At length the entire plant may wilt suddenly on a hot day. Later in the summer some of the affected roots produce short, pale-colored, spindling shoots with small, narrow leaves. When the taproot of such a plant is cut across, the woody portion of the root is found yellow and discolored close beneath the bark. When the bark is stripped back the wood is found yellow or brown, altogether unlike the white wood of healthy plants. This discolored wood distinguishes the disease from winter injury and other troubles.

The bacterial wilt disease is now being studied by the department and state experiment stations to determine its distribution, how it is carried from field to field, when and through what kinds of wounds it most frequently enters the plants, and whether there is varietal resistance to the disease.

Spoilage of Vegetables and Fruits Preventable

Spoilage of canned vegetables and fruits may result because they were not washed clean before they were canned. The soil contains bacteria which causes spoilage. Therefore, get rid of the soil. Wash vegetables, as beans and asparagus, thoroughly before cutting, and peas before podding. Berries should be washed before and after they are hulled. If they are washed in a strainer, the water may be run over them until it is clear as it comes through the strainer. A vegetable brush comes in handy for cleaning some vegetables.

A good slogan to follow in canning all vegetables is "Two hours from garden to can." They should not lay overnight or for a half day or more, but rather should be handled while crisp and fresh. It is far better to pick beans, peas, sweet corn and other vegetables in the early morning and can them right away than to pick them the evening before while they are in a dry, wilted, and hot condition. Flat sour will start by morning in these vegetables that are allowed to lie over night before canned.—Nebraska College of Agriculture.

Agricultural Notes

The laying hen never loafs.
 Silos should be tight enough to keep the juice in and the air out.
 As a cash crop, soy beans can be successfully grown, especially on the lighter and sandier soils.
 The very first step in successful storage of onions is careful curing, and this careful curing must start in the field.
 Rye is an excellent nurse crop for clover seed owing to the fact that it can be cut earlier for grain than either wheat or oats.
 One cannot afford to spend ten dollars' worth of time repairing a machine that is not worth ten dollars after the job is done.
 Successful onion storage demands a cool temperature and low humidity, so it is especially important that they be stored in a well-ventilated place and a place that is as nearly dry as possible.
 Plant food in commercial dried animal manures increased about 40 per cent in cost between 1914 and 1921, reports the New York experiment station. Its average cost today is 42.4 cents a pound, as compared with 10.7 cents a pound in mixed mineral fertilizers.

UNIFORM AUTO CODES

The need for a national uniform vehicle code to promote safety as well as to simplify traffic control was emphasized at the Atlantic Coast Safety Conference, held in Philadelphia, by Benjamin Eynon, Registrar of Motor Vehicles in Pennsylvania. A successful system of traffic control, he said, must combine simplicity in regulations, uniformity, preventive departments, with no parking in congested areas, protection of pedestrians and the use of certain streets for certain types of motor vehicles. Some of these suggestions are incorporated in the traffic code adopted by the general assembly at the last session, which will go into effect on January 1, next. As the law is based on the Hoover code, which was prepared to aid in the standardizing of traffic rules throughout the nation, its results will be watched by other states which may be considering similar measures.—Philadelphia Ledger.

How to Hunt Mr. 'Possum and B'r'er Raccoon Made Easy for All

DEVOTEES of the historic night time pastime of hunting opossums and raccoons have discovered a new method for ferreting out the hiding places of these furry denizens of the woods.
 Both Mr. 'Possum and his cousin B'r'er Raccoon are, as is well known, past masters of the art of concealing themselves on a leafy bough. At the slightest crackle of bush or twig or the distant bay of the hunting dog they take to the trees and proceed to render themselves invisible to the average eye under cover of night.
 Your modern 'possum or raccoon hunter, however, simply unhooks his handy flashlight, which he has been carrying by its ring-hanger from his belt, and shoots its beams up among the boughs of the tree at whose foot bark faithful Tray and his canine companions of the all-night hunt.

Sure enough, among the branches the flashlight beam picks out their quarry's shrinking form and the rest is simple. There remains only the task of shaking the tree sufficiently to toss the bough-clinger from his lofty perch to the ground, or for some hardy member of the expedition to scale the trunk and detach the 'possum or raccoon from his hiding place by a firm grip on his tail.
 Thus does science come to the rescue of those tormented beginners in this delectable sport, who, lacking the instinctive sense of the seasoned pursuer, otherwise would spend weary hours tramping from tree to tree, uncertain whether their scatter-brained dogs had actually treed the object of their chase in this or that pine, birch or oak, or were simply "barking up the wrong tree" for perversity's sake.

Lesson for September 18
THE KINGDOM DIVIDED

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 12:1-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Folly of Pride.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Prevent Divisions.

The movements leading up to the disruption of the kingdom had begun in Solomon's reign. He saw in Jeroboam the leader of insurrection and endeavored to kill him. Jeroboam fled to Egypt until Solomon's death (1 Kings 11:40). Having been informed by the prophet Abijah that he was to have ten tribes over which to rule, as soon as he heard of Solomon's death he returned to be ready to take up his work.

I. The Demand of the People (vv. 1-4).

This was occasioned by the burden of excessive taxation and enforced labor, which was required by Solomon in order to build costly houses and temples for his heathen wives. The people were groaning under its weight. Upon the accession of the new king Rehoboam, the people, through their leader Jeroboam, came with the request that their burdens be made lighter, promising loyalty to him on the condition of lightened burdens.

II. Rehoboam's Foolish Decision (vv. 5-15).

1. Rehoboam consulted with the old men (vv. 5-7). These were men of experience who had been Solomon's advisers. Being acquainted with the condition as imposed by Solomon, and knowing the temper of the people, they advised that the people's request be granted.

2. Rehoboam consulted the young men (vv. 8-11). These young men had grown up with him, possibly were his half-brothers, sons of Solomon's many wives. Being thus brought up in the luxury of the harem, they were ignorant of the legal right of the people. Therefore they advised that the burdens be increased.

3. Rehoboam followed the advice of the young men (vv. 12-15). At the appointed time he announced his purpose to the people. He even answered them roughly, asserting his purpose to increase their burdens and sorrows. He assumed that it was his right to rule and that it was the people's role to obey regardless of conditions.

III. The Revolt of the Ten Tribes (vv. 16-24).

Upon Rehoboam's announcement of his rash purpose all Israel cried out, "What portion have we in David? . . . to your tents, O Israel."

1. Rehoboam's attempt to collect tribute (vv. 18, 19). As he endeavored to collect tribute from the ten tribes, Adoram, his tribute gatherer, was stoned to death. So violent was the opposition on the part of the people that Rehoboam had to flee to Jerusalem to save his life.

2. Jeroboam made king over Israel (v. 20). They seem to have lost no time in selecting a head so as to be strong in their opposition to Rehoboam.

3. Rehoboam's attempt to compel the ten tribes to return to David (vv. 21-24).

To effect this, he assembled his army of 150,000 men. Through the prophecy of Shemaiah, which forbade them to go against their brethren, they were persuaded to return.

IV. Jeroboam's Scheme to Unify the Ten Tribes (vv. 25-33).

1. He established calf worship (vv. 31-33).

(1) He built houses and high places (v. 31). This was against the direct command of God. God had directed His people to destroy the high places and to break down the idolatrous centers. So we see that Jeroboam, by the demands of his sinful heart, disobeyed God.

(2) He changed the day of the Feast of the Tabernacle (v. 32). The time of this feast was set by the Lord (Lev. 23:33, 34). Jeroboam argued that the change in the time would be better suited to their northern climate, but God, who made the climate, ordained the time of the feast. It was his business, therefore, to obey God.

(3) Jeroboam himself intrudes into the priest's office. The act of presumption on his part was the climax of his godless acts, all of which grew out of his wicked heart.

Work of Famous American Architect
Noted In Temporary White House

THE work of a famous American architect is being brought again to the public eye, by the temporary removal of President and Mrs. Coolidge to the Patterson House, 15 Dupont Circle, while the White House is undergoing repairs.

The Patterson dwelling, known throughout Washington for its simple beauty, was designed by the late Stanford White. Its exterior is principally of white terra cotta, in the use of which Mr. White excelled.

The designer's fine touch is obvious, on this "temporary White House." Light and shadow are contrasted with telling effect, through the combination of delicate modeling and bold projection in the terra cotta work.

Other famous buildings designed by the same architect, with similarly artistic treatment, included Madison Square Garden, Madison Square Presbyterian Church, the Herald Building, all in New York.

ALLEGED MAN BEING HELD

In Julian Oil Fiasco, San Francisco Paper Reports.

San Francisco, Calif.—The Examiner says that Jack Bennett, alias Jacob Berman, alleged "key man" in the state's investigation of the collapse of the Julian Petroleum Corporation, was surrendered recently to Los Angeles officers and is expected to aid in the recovery of a large amount of money lost by stockholders.

Bennett, under indictment in Los Angeles, is charged with failure to account for $34,000,000 when he was in charge of promotion work for the corporation, which failed after a huge overissue of stock.

The paper says Bennett told of touring Europe since he disappeared several months ago and he recently visited his wife in New York while she was being watched in an effort to locate him.

Smart Men Marry

An analyst says that married men are smarter than single ones. Maybe they have to be to get away with it. The idea is not that smartness was indicated in the marrying but was developed in the school of experience. It takes a smart man to maintain a wife in the manner to which she has accustomed herself.

Seek Camphor Secret

Botanists are seeking to learn the secret of why one camphor tree will produce solid camphor, and another, although similar in appearance only, camphor oil, which is far less valuable. The Chinese have kept the secret for centuries, and the Japanese, who discovered it in 1895, are also closely guarding it, for to lose it would be to surrender Japan's camphor monopoly.

The following is a copy of a letter of a retail merchant to his wholesaler in answer to a dun:

I beg leave to inform you that the present shattered condition of my bank account makes it impossible for me to send you a check in response to your request for funds for the "Aged and Decrepit Army Worms."

The state of my present financial condition is due to the effects of federal laws, state laws, county laws, corporation laws, by-laws, brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws, mother-in-laws and outlaws, that have been foisted upon an unsuspecting public. Thru these various laws, I have been held down, held up, and walked on, sat on sand-bagged, flattened and squeezed until I do not know where I am, what I am, who I am, or why I am.

These laws compel me to pay a merchant tax, capital stock tax, excess profit tax, income tax, real estate tax, property tax, state auto tax, city auto tax, gas tax, water tax, light tax, amusement tax, cigar tax, cigaret tax, street tax, real tax, school tax, surtax, syntax and carpet tacks.

In addition to paying these taxes I am requested and required to contribute to every society and organization that the inventive mind of man can organize. To the society of the St. John the Baptist, The Women's Relief, the Navy League, the Children's Home fund, the Policemen's Benefit, the Dorcas society, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Boy Scouts, the Jewish Relief, the Belgium Relief, the Near East Relief, the Gold Diggers Home. Also, every hospital and every charitable institution in town, the Red Cross, the Black Cross, the White Cross, the Purple Cross and the Double Cross.

The government has so governed my business that I do not know who owns it. I am suspected, expected, inspected, disrespected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, commanded and compelled until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race and because I refuse to donate all I have and go out and beg, borrow and steal money to give away, I am cussed, discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about, lied about, held up, held down and robbed, until I am nearly ruined, so the only reason I am clinging to life to see what is coming next.—Sylvania (Ga.) Telephone.

Conscientious Official

A request from C. W. Allendoerfer, school board treasurer of Kansas City, Mo., that his salary be cut $50 a month, was approved by the board "with thanks." Mr. Allendoerfer's letter to the board merely said that the service he was giving was not worth the $200 he was being paid.

The scholars of India in the days of the Roman empire had evolved a science of chemistry and knew of the existence of hydrogen and oxygen, according to discoveries announced by C. R. Kokatnur, a chemist, of 50 East Forty-first street. According to Mr. Kokatnur's computations, the discovery of these elements in India antedated their discovery in the western world by about 2,000 years.

Mr. Kokatnur evolved his theories from a Sixteenth century manuscript, which, in turn, was taken from writings coming down from before the Christian era.

According to Mr. Kokatnur, a word which corresponds to the English word "chemistry" has been traced to these pre-Christian days, together with other nouns denoting various dyes, perfumes and fibers.—New York Times.

QUAKER OATS DEMONSTRATION CAR, AN AUBURN

One of the Quaker Oats demonstration cars was in our city Thursday. This car has built into it a miniature of the famous system "FOODS SHOT FROM GUNS."

Mr. LeRoy Myers, the manager of the Quaker Oats demonstrating fleet was with the car and informed us that it is one of nine AUBURN cars used for this purpose and has traveled over the entire United States and into Mexico. This car has run over 135,000 miles and the Quaker Oats company is so very much satisfied with AUBURN service that they have ordered three more new AUBURN Eights for the same purpose.

Report Discovery of Indian Rock Carving

What is described as the largest specimen of petroglyphs, or Indian rock carvings, in Canada was recently reported to the archeological office of the Canadian National museum at Ottawa. This carving is said to be 250 feet long and is near Yale, British Columbia. According to the reports, it is carved on a vertical face of reddish rock sheltered by an overhanging ledge. It is about half a mile south of the eastern end of the Alexander bridge on the Caribou highway, and near the Canadian National railway. A trout fishing trail, from which it can probably be seen, runs up in its direction. Previously, the largest known rock carving was on the west side of a 70-foot canyon, about one mile south of Mackenzie highway, in the "Norway of Canada," near Bella Coola, B. C. If the 250-foot carving is verified, efforts will probably be made to have the region set aside as a national monument.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices

Divorce Suit Filed.

Effie M. Atwood has filed in the court of common pleas a suit for divorce from Oscar Atwood. The couple were married in Chillicothe March 3, 1897. They are the parents of twelve living children. The plaintiff charges the defendant with extreme cruelty and gross neglect. She asks the court to restrain the defendant from disposing of his farm consisting of fifteen acres of land located in Pickaway township and also asks for alimony and support of her minor children, the youngest of whom is four years of age. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

Delinquency Charge.

Forrest Hunt was placed under arrest in Columbus Wednesday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Anna Belle McDonald, of Duvall. The warrant was filed by girl's father, Cecil McDonald.

Suit For Money.

C. K. Hunsicker has filed a civil action for money in common pleas court against B. O. Keller and Lucy Keller amount claimed $100.48 with interest at 8 per cent from September 14, 1927.

Alleged Forger.

Chief of Police Warner, accompanied by W. J. Ryan went to Chillicothe Wednesday and brought Ray Van Scoy back with them. He is charged with forging a check on Mr. Ryan for $15. He had a hearing before Mayor Fitzpatrick and in default of a bond of $500, was placed in the county jail.

OHIO HISTORY CELEBRATION AT LOGAN ELM

Preparations are Being Made For a Great Crowd on the First Sunday in October.

Let's see. Where have I heard that word, Logan?

Oh, now I know. It's the name of a sulky chap who got mad because some other chaps killed all his folks and so he wouldn't go to the pow-wow." Finally he changed his mind (like a woman), and spoke his piece (like a man.)

All this took place under a tree. "What tree, mother?" "An elm tree, son, a big old elm tree and we call it LOGAN ELM." "Where is LOGAN ELM, mother?" "On Pickaway Plains, son, six miles southeast of Circleville, that place about half way between Columbus and Chillicothe where a long time ago they squared the circle."

"O, yes, and what about Logan Elm, mother?"

"Well, there's to be a big meeting there on October 2, and an Indian is to sing and tell about his people and lots of things are going to happen.

"Let's go, mother." "We surely will, sonny-boy."

RAGE OF SLAVES IN CHINA FREED AFTER 550 YEARS

"Lazy Men" Tribes, Descendants of Mongol Conquerors, Are Given Full Citizenship.

Peking.—After being held in bondage for 550 years, the descendants of the Mongols who conquered China in the Fourteenth century and who have been kept in a state of virtual slavery ever since in Chekiang province, south of Shanghai, have been freed by formal edict of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

From the year 960 to 1127 the Sung dynasty ruled China undisturbed. Then, at the time of the Crusades in Europe, when Russia also was being overrun by Mongol tribes, the Mongols descended from the north and west upon China.

After a long period of civil war and chaos the Mongols founded the Yuan dynasty, with Peking as their capital, in the year 1280. This dynasty lasted less than a century, being superseded in 1368 by the Ming dynasty, which in turn was overthrown by the Manchus in 1644, the latter holding the throne until the republic was founded in 1911.

When the Mongol dynasty collapsed in 1368 and the Imperial Yuan family retreated northwestward to Urumchi, about 30,000 Mongol garrison troops in Chekiang province were cut off. An imperial edict issued by the first Ming emperor made these Mongols all slaves and, though they have not been subject to personal sale for some hundreds of years, they have been harshly oppressed for five and a half centuries.

For 500 years these marooned Mongols have been officially listed as an "inferior race." They have been barred from taking part in civil service examinations and have not been permitted to hold public office.

So strong has been the prejudice against them that not a single case of intermarriage with a Chinese has been recorded. In occupations they have been limited to chair bearers, rickshaw pullers, firemen, barbers and shoemakers.

Today these Mongols number about 20,000 at Ning-Po, where they are nicknamed "lazy men"; 200,000 live at Chu-Chow and Wen-Chow, where they are called "cheap men," and others distributed throughout the province number 130,000 more and are known as "the nine degenerate families."

Under the new mandate all trades and professions are thrown open to these Mongols; their children may be educated with Chinese children (when and if the law lords release any revenue for educational purposes), and the ban against intermarriage is officially abolished.

Holds Breath 14 Minutes; Student Sets New Record

Middletown, Conn.—A Wesleyan senior, Earl L. Gaylor of Cliftondale, Mass., has established a new world's record by holding his breath for fourteen minutes and two seconds. The previous record was for ten minutes and ten seconds and was made at the University of California in 1916.

Professor Edward L. Schneider of the biology department at Wesleyan vouches for the authenticity of the test. He declares that a graphic record of chest and diaphragm motion over the entire period showed that at no time could air have been taken into the lungs.

Oxygen was used by Mr. Gaylor in preparing for the test. He first breathed excessively over a short period in order to rid the blood of carbon dioxide. He then took three deep breaths of oxygen, the last of which he held for the record time.

Fifth Century Christian Pictures in Cliff Cave

Jerusalem, Palestine.—What is believed to be the oldest extant specimens of Christian pictorial art in Palestine has been discovered in the cave of the Fifth century hermit, Theocistus, in the desert about ten miles east of Jerusalem.

The interior of the cave had been fashioned into a church, with a mosaic floor and frescoes representing the Virgin Mary, the crucifixion and a group of saints.

D. J. Chitty of New College, Oxford, found the cave, which is in the side of a cliff, and can be reached only by a rope or ladder.

Discover Anesthetic When Flowers Die

Chicago.—Because Wisconsin carnations went to sleep when brought to Chicago, science was able to discover ethylene, a new anesthetic as powerful as ether and less poisonous, doctors say.

Discovery followed an investigation by William Crocker and L. I. Knight, University of Chicago botanists, according to Dr. Arnold Luckhardt of the university's physiology department.

The botanists were called in to explain why carnations wilted when exposed to "illuminating gas."

Laboratory work then disclosed the gas possessed the principle of ethylene. Doctor Luckhardt conducted tests, even trying the new anesthetic on himself, before he introduced it to the medical profession.

AMUSEMENTS

If you don't enjoy dancing, you don't enjoy life to its utmost! Believe it or not, this is the contention of Joan Crawford, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player who was a Broadway dance celebrity before attaining a like position as a picture actress.

One can't talk to Joan for five minutes without realizing that here is a girl who is getting the utmost out of every experience, whose effulgent personality carries her thru every difficulty to a point a little bit higher than she occupied before.

Joan says that dancing taught her to project this personality, to live in a veritable whirl of life and rhythm and by sheer force to conquer her misfortunes rather than let them conquer her.

"Dancing is far more than a physical exercise," says Miss Crawford. "It is something that takes hold of one's spirits as well, and pitches them to a higher key. I would advise every young person, and especially every girl, to study dancing, even if she knows that she will never put it to any so-called 'practical use.'"

Joan plays the title role in Harry Millarde's production of "The Taxi Dancer," now playing at the Met theater. It is the screen version of Robert Terry Shannon's popular novel of the same name, and the cast includes Owen Moore, Marc MacDermott, Douglas Gilmore, Gertrude Astor, Rockliffe Fellowes, Bert Roach, Claire McDowell, William Orlamond and Charles French.

TERRY, KING OF ALL UNCLE TOM PRODUCERS.

Uncle Tom shows may come and Uncle Tom shows may go, but—Terry's big company goes on forever, and is looked upon as King and Monarch of them all with the slogan, "Forever, Foremost and Newest." Many have tried to imitate the successful Terry for years, springing up like Jonah's gourd, but they have withered in the night like a school of minnows following in the wake of a whale, and it was thus that the lines were adopted, "After the Minnows Comes the Whale," and it has surely proved in its place when used. Terry has been a successful producer of Uncle Tom's Cabin for the past thirty-three years and this season is no exception to the rule. His production this season is more than living up to the past reputation of former years, the large company composed of some fifty people, both white and colored, travel in their own especially constructed cars, and give the performance under a monster waterproof tent, and when the show comes this year, it will be found to be greatly enlarged.

Terry's big production of Harriet Ward Beecher Stowe's famous slave play will appear for one night performance only at Circleville, Thursday, September 15.

Terry's Challenge concert bands will give free concerts upon the principal streets. Doors open at 7:30 p. m. Performance at 8 p. m.

LICENSE TAG NUMBER MAY MAKE SUCCESS

An automobile driver in Athens feels that the number on his automobile license tag will have something to do with success in his affairs of the heart. He is moreover given over to superstition.

In writing to Joseph E. Baird, assistant secretary of state, asking for a tag for 1928, and taking time by the forelock before the requests become too numerous and the tags of the kind he desires are gone, he makes this unique request. "Please select a number for me that has something sentimental about it. This may help me with the young ladies I take out riding. But above all things do not pick one out with 13 in it. I am afraid that would bring bad luck."

"That is the most novel request I have ever had," said Mr. Baird, "although they write in asking for nearly everything."

After giving the matter due consideration and calling in others for consultation, the number 3553 was finally decided upon and sent.

Baird admitted he did not know whether this would meet the requirements for sentimentality but at least it did not have 13 included and would meet that portion of the request.

MADE HIS BID FOR BARGAIN IN WIVES

Abbe Domenech, the French priest who labored in Texas in the early part of the Nineteenth century, left an interesting record of his work in a book, now out of print, that was published in London in 1853.

One amusing incident he recorded concerned a Presbyterian minister at Brownsville, who bestirred himself to dispose of his three marriageable daughters. The minister, noting that no one sought the hands of his daughters, preached a sermon on the subject of marriage, amplifying the text in Genesis, "Increase and Multiply." He spoke with eloquence and warmth on the bliss of the hymeneal state and ended by offering his three daughters, with $3,000 of fortune for each, to whomsoever would espouse them. He added that he would receive the names of the candidates after service. A wag in the congregation did not wait for the time prescribed by the minister, but shouted from his pew: "Put my name on the list for two." —Kansas City Star.

BANK HEAD IS SUICIDE

Greenville, O., Sept. 13.—(UP.)—The Farmers' State Bank of Eldorado, Preble County, closed here this morning following the suicide about 9 p. m. yesterday of Carl D. Miller, president, whose body was found in the garage back of his home by his wife.

Miller shot himself in the head. Mrs. Miller found a note on the table when she returned home from a club last night. The note said she would find her husband in the garage and that affairs of the bank were in good condition. The wife notified the Preble County coroner who said Miller had been dead about two hours. State examiners examined the books about three weeks ago.

They returned yesterday morning to make a further check.

DISTRESS IS LAID TO MINERS

Operators Declare Suffering in Valley Fields Is "Self-inflicted."

Following refusal of Governor Donahey, yesterday to issue a proclamation calling for financial aid for school children in the districts affected by Ohio mine disputes, Hocking Valley coal mine operators issued a statement putting "suffering and distress" squarely up to the striking miners.

Governor Donahey, while declaring he would be glad to head a contributors' list to alleviate suffering in the Glouster district or any other, declined to issue a proclamation at the request of a committee of Glouster merchants.

The operators' statement, given after their meeting here, said, in part:

"The tragedy of the situation lies in the truth that the misery now prevailing among Hocking Valley miners is self-inflicted.

"It is true that families of many idle miners are suffering from lack of sufficient food and clothing. The remedy lies in the hands of the miners themselves.

"The present plight is due to refusal of husbands and fathers to return to work.

"Since July 15, Hocking Valley coal operators have sought vainly to induce the miners to accept what is known as the $5 a day scale of wages—the same scale now in effect at mines operating in adjoining counties of Meigs and Gallia, and in the neighboring states of Kentucky and West Virginia—a scale above the level Ohio is now paying for construction of highways, with many applicants for every job."

Many Counties Complete
Tuberculin Testing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A summary of tuberculosis-eradication work conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the various states shows excellent results during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927. An outstanding achievement was the large increase in the number of entire counties which have completed the tuberculin testing of all cattle within their boundaries. The summary of progress shows 347 such counties distributed among 27 states. Thus more than half of the states have one or more such tuberculosis-free counties. The three leading states in this respect are North Carolina with 82 counties on the modified-accredited list, Michigan with 42 and Iowa with 30 such counties.

On July 1 a total of 17,600,330 cattle in the United States were under supervision for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis. Besides this number considerably more than four million cattle are on waiting lists and will be tested as soon as the federal, state and county veterinary inspectors complete other work for those owners who signed up earlier for tuberculin testing.

The total number of cattle in herds accredited as free from tuberculosis exceeds 1,885,000. The work of tuberculosis eradication is going forward systematically in all states. During the last month of the fiscal year the inspectors engaged in tuberculin testing applied the test to more than 800,000 cattle, of which approximately 24,000 were found to be affected with the disease. The removal of such reactors from contact with healthy cattle, followed by the slaughter of diseased animals under federal inspection, is gradually reducing the extent of bovine tuberculosis throughout the country and benefiting both the live-stock industry and public health.

Plan for Determining Sex of Guinea Fowls

In raising guinea fowls, many amateurs and some not so amateurish, are puzzled when the time comes for marketing, as they find it difficult to select males and females to be retained for breeding purposes.

To a casual observer the male and female of the species are identical in shape, size and plumage. But a closer inspection will reveal that one has a richer color of the neck feathers, its wattles are more plump and firm, and the plumage in general is more compact. This is the male.

The "buck-wheat" call that is so commonly supposed to come from the male is, in fact, the cry of the female, usually when frightened or excited. She may be further detected by her rougher coat of feathers, and by her wattles which are somewhat pale and shrunken.

When guinea fowls are in the prime of condition, as they should be after spending the summer on free range, the difference between the male and female will not be so pronounced as it is in the early summer, just after mating time, and one should study the birds carefully to insure a balanced selection of stock for breeding purposes.

Harvest Silage Corn When Ears Are Mature

When corn is to be harvested for silage, it should be cut when the ears are mature but the leaves and stalks are still green. Corn cut and bound to be fed as dry forage should be cut at the same time. It should be allowed to cure in shocks until dry and then hauled in and piled. By this method the ears are mature and well filled and all of the forage value of the stalks is saved.

Corn should not be shucked out of the field until it has dried for several weeks, after it has quit growing. Otherwise the corn will be hard to shuck, will be apt to heat and mold and make poor feed. In shucking from the field it is a good practice to have a box in which to throw the better ears. These can be specially dried out and sorted for seed supply if field-selection has not been practiced, or if there is a market for seed corn.

As the corn is shucked out it should be hauled to a crib that is well ventilated, and if possible protected against rats and mice.—Extension Bulletin 237-A, Colorado Agricultural College.

Rye and Wheat Are Good as Spring Soiling Crop

For a spring soiling crop, fall-sown rye and wheat are excellent and are especially adaptable in the North. These can be followed with either barley or oats for an early summer soiling crop in the North. Sudan grass is, also, an excellent soiling crop for this season, and in the South sorghums and Japanese cane in particular are probably the best. Sorghums may be cut at two to three feet, but much better yields are realized if they are allowed to head.

The big need for a soiling crop is in midsummer, however, when pastures are dry. For a short season crop at this time, corn is the leader in the corn belt. It is palatable, yields heavily, and remains in good condition over a long period of time.

Breaks Closed-Car 2,000-mile Record

Then during night skidded in rain storm, turned over several times, received body repairs only

Then Finishes 15,000-miles at 62.709 M.P.H.

For more than 30 hours, averaging better than 65 miles an hour, this strictly stock Auburn Sedan had been whirling around the Atlantic City Speedway day and night.

Then came a terrific rain storm. Wet track. At 70 miles per hour the driver skidded, the car crashed.

Radiator and body repairs were made. Seven hours had been lost. But the Sedan went back into the test with the same driver. It caught up with the other two Auburn stock cars and finished the unprecedented distance of 15,000 miles.

After the accident, the car was declared non-stock, as it was no longer complete—exactly as sold, but its time continued to be officially recorded by the A.A.A. The longest, hardest and fastest official test ever given a closed car.

Unheard of as this performance is, it was only an incident in the 42,000 miles of official stock car test Auburn conducted, breaking all records for completely equipped stock cars from 5 to 5,000 miles, and establishing new stock car records from 5,000 to 15,000 miles.

The purpose of this extreme and hitherto unattempted stock car test, was to demonstrate by three times greater proof the supreme leadership of Auburn cars in speed, endurance, durability and efficiency. Your Auburn dealer has exact duplicates of the Auburn cars that made these phenomenal records.

The Auburn Straight Eight Sedan, one of the three fully equipped strictly stock cars in the Atlantic City Speedway endurance test. Here it is shown traveling better than 70 miles an hour after breaking closed-car 2,000 mile record at 65.583 miles per hour.

Drawing made from actual photograph

About the middle of the second night of this continuous run, when the track was wet as a result of a rain storm, the driver skidded. As a result, the car going at high speed skidded. It hit the guard rail and turned over. The sturdy construction of Auburn resisted this smash so well that only body damages resulted. The driver was unhurt.

Drawing made from actual photograph

Here is proof of stamina! After 7 hours for photographs and body repairs, this sedan went back into the endurance test, driven by the same driver, and finished the remainder of the 15,000 miles at an average speed of over 67 miles an hour for the net running time for the entire distance.

Those Appealing Eyes

By AD SCHUSTER

FEELING that it was more than he could afford, Nat Winan slipped a quarter under the edge of his plate.

"If ever a girl needed money," he thought as he looked at the dark-haired waitress who had served him, "she does."

As he arose to leave she thanked him and as he looked into her eyes he had his reward. The eyes said more than her words. They seemed to speak of a gratitude out of proportion to the small tip.

"Thank you," said the girl again and Nat thought she was near to tears.

After that he took to going without dessert that he might leave his cost for the girl. While he ate he watched her. She was as neat, perhaps neater than the others, he decided, and yet in her very neatness there was a story of a struggle to make ends meet. He could see that she had dyed her waist herself and in her belt and tie there were firmly pressed evidences of needlework that had all but concealed the ravages of time and many washings. She never told him she was poor. Her slim figure, appealing eyes, indeed, her very presence did that. She was the sort, he told himself, who could hide holes with ink spots, cover spots with a flower or apron, and never know when she was beaten.

"She is a brave little kid," said Nat Winan, feeling suddenly his strength and independence as a man, "and I wish I could do something to help her." He wondered how large a pay check was, whether she had some one to support and tried to read the story in the face that daily seemed more tragic and wistful.

After a while Nat discovered others were leaving tips for Irene. To some he confided his theory that she was using every cent for the care of an aged mother and was surprised to learn they had long held the same belief. Meals at the Red Front restaurant became more than a formality. Nat felt that in leaving his daily tip and calling the attention of others to the wordless appeal of the waitress he was taking part in a philanthropic enterprise. He even felt as a father or big brother to the girl and discovered that her face, particularly her eyes, persisted in his thoughts. At such times he would smile and say, that, according to tradition, it should be a rich man and not he who should fall in love with the waitress and rescue her from her poverty and hard work.

One evening as the young man walked the streets in the neighborhood of his home he tried to analyze his feelings for Irene, sought to discover if the pity he felt for the young woman was love. With the problem on his mind he stepped from the curb. There came an agonized squeal of brakes, an angry, frightened shout, an automobile struck him and he went down.

Nat knew his shoulder was hurting, that he had been shoved along in the dirt. He could hear people running up. He was the center of such a crowd as he has seen around other injured men and he wanted to tell them to go away. Then he saw a woman, a beautiful woman in an evening dress. Her face was white and frightened and she leaned over.

"You stepped right in front," she said. "I couldn't help hitting you."

The crowd seemed to disappear. Nat could see nothing but the face of the girl whose automobile had bowled him over. They were lifting him to his feet now. Perhaps he wasn't so badly hurt.

"Take this," said the girl; "it's for a new suit and maybe for a doctor."

Mechanically he closed his hand on the roll of bills. It was all too bewildering. This girl of the fine dress, the automobile and the money, was Irene of the restaurant, Irene who looked appealing and made it pay.

Morley Didn't Care to Hear Gladstone's Voice

John Morley's "Life of Gladstone" is, of course, one of the greatest biographies ever written. Dr. Charles F. Thwing, president emeritus of Western Reserve university, was once discussing it with Morley, and the latter told him that Mr. Gladstone left no fewer than 300,000 distinct pieces of paper, some of large, some of small, content; some of great significance, some of no meaning.

"But I had to examine each one, and it almost killed me," added Morley.

Morley was once staying with Andrew Carnegie, and a phonograph was doing its best to entertain the company by grinding out its songs and speeches.

"Would it not be good if we had had the phonograph in the days of Mr. Gladstone, and could have preserved his voice for our present hearing?" remarked Mr. Carnegie.

John Morley replied with a wearisome sigh:

"I heard Mr. Gladstone's voice all I wanted to."—Kansas City Times.

Praise

If then I were a nightingale, I would do the nightingale's part; if I were a swan, I would do as a swan. Gypsy Language Universal Romany is the language spoken by the gypsies. It is said that a careful examination shows that Romany is closely allied to that ancient language of the Middle East, the Sanscrit. The language of true gypsies in every land is nearly alike and gypsies from widely separated countries can understand one another.

NO TRICK TO IT

It is characteristic of the knocker to use the wrong method in trying to do anything, so it is quite like him to try to kick open the treasure chest of municipal prosperity when his feeble first attempts to get somewhere have failed. He has much to learn about the right way of doing things for his own good and for the good of the town.

A pessimistic attitude never opened the way to a happier existence and the idea that criticizing everything will lead anywhere is dead wrong. These are the chief possessions of most knockers, so it is not hard to understand why they are usually counted out.

The only right method to use in promoting the town's welfare is to inject the spirit of civic pride into everything. That spirit is the key to the town's prosperity and all the keys that the knocker has been trying to use might better be thrown in the scrap heap. Civic pride is what Circleville and every other city must keep alive and let's see that it is done.

"Mad" Litigants

The Bolshevism of Brush Creek

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"I WONDER why people love to say such horrid things," Marcia speculated.

"Natural cussedness—politely called original sin," Leesy said through the corner of her mouth.

"For instance, the Wests won't go anywhere," Marcia went on, "not even to church, since it got out that Joe's wedding clothes are still unpaid for—and that skindint lives threatening suit. He knows they'll pay when they can, but keeps dunning them."

"Personal spite there—Jen can't have had that goggle-eyed young fives for just the taking," Leesy explained. "Goggle-eye propped himself on Joe's piazza three Sundays running, after scraping acquaintance with her. Saturdays when she brought in their truck. Mose West invited him to stay away, ever so politely—told him he was his girl, and he didn't want a real dangerous rival. Goggle-eye proposed the very next day over the telephone—so next time Mose clean forgot to be polite—scared the Ives hope out of at least a year's growth."

"So that's the real low-down of it," Marcia laughed. "Something ought to be done about it. But how about a boycott?"

"With trimmings!" Leesy cried joyously. "Now that we all can vote, let's organize against the Oppression of the Unearned Increment in the shape of long credits to old Pat Logan. His megas are all set to run for circuit judge in September. The decent poor and the simply decent can if they will, snow him under out of sight. Just get together, make believe to turn Bolshevik, I'll bet you we turn out angels of rescue to everybody in debt."

"Which means nearly everybody in the county."

"Say—do you know how long it takes to stop a big wagon?" Leesy asked abruptly.

"I can find out."

"I'm thinkin' of the Graysons," Leesy said. "They—they've had such dreadful luck—losing hogs with cholera, more than a hundred—worth enough to have left them free and clear; then lightning struck their stock barn—not insured through lack of money—which meant new teams on credit—at double price with interest."

"This was hatched Brush Creek's outbreak of Bolshevik enthusiasm that drew to that delectable region more than state-wide attention. Marcia and Leesy had laid all cards on the table before uncles, nephews, cousins, sweethearts present and prospective, also their grievances—which had enough of reality to make them tenable.

Their prize investigator was Joe Grayson, who looked so innocent and asked such simple questions nobody feared to tell him anything. That is to say, except Marcia Lytle—who let her eyes only tell him she loved him. Leesy knew without telling, being herself in much the same case regarding young Langley who had mortgaged his future for a loan from a speculative dealer in grain, in hope thus to make a quick fortune.

First storm clouds had risen in June to darken the political skies of sundry excellent gentlemen. Marcia and Leesy and their coadjutors for six weeks worked under cover. Suddenly burst the era of barbecues—plentiful roast meat to lure the sovereigns within earshot of orators who could charm birds from the trees, followed more barbecues—money began talking through them on the other side, then three days before election, every highway was placarded, "Citizens, vote to secure every man in what is justly his own—but not to let him take away through usury what belongs to his neighbor." Then letter boxes overran with printed transcripts of court proceedings where law had prevailed to the undoing of justice—likewise statistics of what the county had lost potentially through the enforced emigration of so much of its best blood. More than one millionaire was in the roster, eke judges, railroad men, engineers, merchant-traders, what not—all under the heading: "They went away to find their chances—chances denied them at home."

No need to wait till votes were counted—admittedly the Bolsheviks had won, hands down. Sassy Leesy pinched an ear of the kidnaped Joe Grayson, saying softly: "I'm happy—happy enough to die. Don't grudge it—if you are a man. First chance I ever had to feel I'd really helped the right side. We'll do it again—me and Marcia—when it comes to voting for the new bridge at New Year. That means fat chances of hauling and so on for you and Billy Langley," flushing in spite of herself as she spoke the name; "and you go ask Marcia what she thinks of a nice double wedding at Christmas. She'd be awfully plagued if she had to ask you herself."

"Don't trifle! I've stood all I can today," Joe said huskily. "You don't—you can't think I've even half a chance?"

"A whole chance with bells and blue ribbon on it, also a wedding ring!" Leesy laughed—then as Joe grabbed her hand and all but crushed it: "Find Bill Langley and tell him about the plan—and if he threatens to run away, paste him one in the eye."

QUAKER OATS DEMONSTRATION CAR, AN AUBURN

One of the Quaker Oats demonstration cars was in our city Thursday. This car has built into it a miniature of the famous system "FOODS SHOT FROM GUNS."

Mr. LeRoy Myers, the manager of the Quaker Oats demonstrating fleet was with the car and informed us that it is one of nine AUBURN cars used for this purpose and has traveled over the entire United States and into Mexico. This car has run over 135,000 miles and the Quaker Oats company is so very much satisfied with AUBURN service that they have ordered three more new AUBURN Eights for the same purpose.

HAMMEL MOTORS, of our city, has the sales agency for these exceptional cars.

Report Discovery of Indian Rock Carving

What is described as the largest specimen of petroglyphs, or Indian rock carvings, in Canada was recently reported to the archeological office of the Canadian National museum at Ottawa. This carving is said to be 250 feet long and is near Yale, British Columbia. According to the reports, it is carved on a vertical face of reddish rock sheltered by an overhanging ledge. It is about half a mile south of the eastern end of the Alexander bridge on the Caribou highway, and near the Canadian National railway. A trout fishing trail, from which it can probably be seen, runs up in its direction. Previously, the largest known rock carving was on the west side of a 70-foot canyon, about one mile south of Mackenzie highway, in the "Norway of Canada," near Bella Coola, B. C. If the 250-foot carving is verified, efforts will probably be made to have the region set aside as a national monument.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices

Divorce Suit Filed.

Effie M. Atwood has filed in the court of common pleas a suit for divorce from Oscar Atwood. The couple were married in Chillicothe March 3, 1897. They are the parents of twelve living children. The plaintiff charges the defendant with extreme cruelty and gross neglect. She asks the court to restrain the defendant from disposing of his farm consisting of fifteen acres of land located in Pickaway township and also asks for alimony and support of her minor children, the youngest of whom is four years of age. I. F. Snyder represents the plaintiff.

Delinquency Charge.

Forrest Hunt was placed under arrest in Columbus Wednesday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Anna Belle McDonald, of Duval. The warrant was filed by girl's father, Cecil McDonald.

Suit For Money.

C. K. Hunsicker has filed a civil action for money in common pleas court against B. O. Keller and Lucy Keller amount claimed $100.48 with interest at 8 per cent from September 14, 1927.

Alleged Forger.

Chief of Police Warner, accompanied by W. J. Ryan went to Chillicothe Wednesday and brought Ray Van Scoy back with them. He is charged with forging a check on Mr. Ryan for $15. He had a hearing before Mayor Fitzpatrick and in default of a bond of $500, was placed in the county jail.

OHIO HISTORY CELEBRATION AT LOGAN ELM

Preparations are Being Made For a Great Crowd on the First Sunday in October.

Let's see. Where have I heard that word, Logan?
Oh, now I know. It's the name of a sulky chap who got mad because some other chaps killed all his folks and so he wouldn't go to the powwow." Finally he changed his mind (like a woman), and spoke his piece (like a man.)
All this took place under a tree. "What tree, mother?" "An elm tree, son, a big old elm tree and we call it LOGAN ELM." "Where is LOGAN ELM, mother?" "On Pickaway Plains, son, six miles southeast of Circleville, that place about half way between Columbus and Chillicothe where a long time ago they squared the circle."
"O, yes, and what about Logan Elm, mother?"
"Well, there's to be a big meeting there on October 2, and an Indian is to sing and tell about his people and lots of things are going to happen."
"Let's go, mother." "We surely will, sonny-boy."

RAGE OF SLAVES IN CHINA FREED AFTER 550 YEARS

"Lazy Men" Tribe, Descendants of Mongol Conquerors, Are Given Full Citizenship.

Peking.—After being held in bondage for 550 years, the descendants of the Mongols who conquered China in the Fourteenth century and who have been kept in a state of virtual slavery ever since in Chekiang province, south of Shanghai, have been freed by formal edict of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

From the year 900 to 1127 the Sung dynasty ruled China undisputed. Then, at the time of the Crusades in Europe, when Russia also was being overrun by Mongol tribes, the Mongols descended from the north and west upon China.

After a long period of civil war and chaos the Mongols founded the Yuan dynasty, with Peking as their capital, in the year 1280. This dynasty lasted less than a century, being superseded in 1368 by the Ming dynasty, which in turn was overthrown by the Manchus in 1644, the latter holding the throne until the republic was founded in 1911.

When the Mongol dynasty collapsed in 1368 and the Imperial Yuan family retreated northwestward to Urgan, about 30,000 Mongol garrison troops in Chekiang province were cut off. An imperial edict issued by the first Ming emperor made these Mongols all slaves and, though they have not been subject to personal sale for some hundreds of years, they have been harshly oppressed for five and a half centuries.

For 500 years these marooned Mongols have been officially listed as an "inferior race." They have been debarred from taking part in civil service examinations and have not been permitted to hold public office.

So strong has been the prejudice against them that not a single case of intermarriage with a Chinese has been recorded. In occupations they have been limited to chair bearers, richshaw pullers, firemen, barbers and shoemakers.

Today these Mongols number about 20,000 at Ning-Po, where they are nicknamed "lazy men." 200,000 live at Chu-Chow and Wen-Chow, where they are called "cheap men," and others distributed throughout the province number 130,000 more and are known as "the nine degenerate families."

Under the new mandate all trades and professions are thrown open to these Mongols; their children may be educated with Chinese children (when and if the war lords release any revenue for educational purposes), and the ban against intermarriage is officially abolished.

Holds Breath 14 Minutes; Student Sets New Record

Middletown, Conn.—A Wesleyan senior, Earl L. Gaylor of Cliftondale, Mass., has established a new world's record by holding his breath for fourteen minutes and two seconds. The previous record was for ten minutes and ten seconds and was made at the University of California in 1916.

Professor Edward L. Schneider of the biology department at Wesleyan vouches for the authenticity of the test. He declares that a graphic record of chest and diaphragm motion over the entire period showed that at no time could air have been taken into the lungs.

Oxygen was used by Mr. Gaylor in preparing for the test. He first breathed excessively over a short period in order to rid the blood of carbon dioxide. He then took three deep breaths of oxygen, the last of which he held for the record time.

Fifth Century Christian Pictures in Cliff Cave

Jerusalem, Palestine.—What is believed to be the oldest extant specimen of Christian pictorial art in Palestine has been discovered in the cave of the Fifth century hermit, Theoclitus, in the desert about ten miles east of Jerusalem.

The interior of the cave had been fashioned into a church, with a mosaic floor and frescoes representing the Virgin Mary, the crucifixion and a group of saints.

D. J. Chitty of New college, Oxford, found the cave, which is in the side of a cliff, and can be reached only by a rope or ladder.

Discover Anesthetic When Flowers Die

Chicago.—Because Wisconsin carnations went to sleep when brought to Chicago, science was able to discover ethylene, a new anesthetic as powerful as ether and less poisonous, doctors say.

Discovery followed an investigation by William Crocker and L. I. Knight, University of Chicago botanists, according to Dr. Arnold Luckhardt of the university's physiology department.

The botanists were called in to explain why carnations wilted when exposed to illuminating gas.

Laboratory work then disclosed the gas possessed the principle of ethylene. Doctor Luckhardt conducted tests, even trying the new anesthetic on himself, before he introduced it to the medical profession.

AMUSEMENTS

If you don't enjoy dancing, you don't enjoy life to its utmost!

Believe it or not, this is the contention of Joan Crawford, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player who was a Broadway dance celebrity before attaining a like position as a picture actress.

One can't talk to Joan for five minutes without realizing that here is a girl who is getting the utmost out of every experience, whose effulgent personality carries her thru every difficulty to a point a little bit higher than she occupied before.

Joan says that dancing taught her to project this personality, to live in a veritable whirl of life and rhythm and by sheer force to conquer her misfortunes—rather than let them conquer her.

"Dancing is far more than a physical exercise," says Miss Crawford. "It is something that takes hold of one's spirits as well, and pitches them to a higher key. I would advise every young person, and especially every girl, to study dancing, even if she knows that she will never put it to any so-called 'practical use.'"

Joan plays the title role in Harry Millarde's production of "The Taxi Dancer," now playing at the Met theater. It is the screen version of Robert Terry Shannon's popular novel of the same name, and the cast includes Owen Moore, Marc MacDermott, Douglas Gilmore, Gertrude Astor, Rockliffe Fellowes, Bert Roach, Claire McDowell, William Orlamond and Charles French.

TERRY, KING OF ALL UNCLE TOM PRODUCERS.

Uncle Tom shows may come and Uncle Tom shows may go, but—Terry's big company goes on forever, and is looked upon as King and Monarch of them all with the slogan, "Forever, Foremost and Newest." Many have tried to imitate the successful Terry for years, springing up like Jonah's gourd, but they have withered in the night like a school of minnows following in the wake of a whale, and it was thus that the lines were adopted, "After the Minnows Comes the Whale," and it has surely proved in its place when used. Terry has been a successful producer of Uncle Tom's Cabin for the past thirty-three years and this season is no exception to the rule. His production this season is more than living up to the past reputation of former years, the large company composed of some fifty people, both white and colored, travel in their own especially constructed cars, and give the performance under a monster waterproof tent, and when the show comes this year, it will be found to be greatly enlarged.

Terry's big production of Harriet Ward Beecher Stowe's famous slave play will appear for one night performance only at Circleville, Thursday, September 15.

Terry's Challenge concert bands will give free concerts upon the principal streets. Doors open at 7:30 p. m. Performance at 8 p. m.

LICENSE TAG NUMBER MAY MAKE SUCCESS

An automobile driver in Athens feels that the number on his automobile license tag will have something to do with success in his affairs of the heart. He is moreover given over to superstition.

In writing to Joseph E. Baird, assistant secretary of state, asking for a tag for 1928, and taking time by the forelock before the requests become too numerous and the tags of the kind he desires are gone, he makes this unique request. "Please select a number for me that has something sentimental about it. This may help me with the young ladies I take out riding. But above all things do not pick one out with 13 in it. I am afraid that would bring bad luck."

"That is the most novel request I have ever had," said Mr. Baird, "although they write in asking for nearly everything."

After giving the matter due consideration and calling in others for consultation, the number 3553 was finally decided upon and sent.

Baird admitted he did not know whether this would meet the requirements for sentimentality but at least it did not have 13 included and would meet that portion of the request.
